

PACKERS' ORDER MEANS STRIKE WILL SPREAD TO STOCKYARDS

President Roosevelt May Soon Be Asked To Settle the Trouble In Chicago.

Employers Testing Regard of Strikers For Injunction.

President of Union Expresses Confidence In Outcome of Struggle—Meat Situation Now Involved—Some Violence Occurs—Labor Meeting Called For Tomorrow.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The strike situation assumed the proportions of general rioting this noon. A caravan of wagons without an escort, was attacked in the retail district. Non-union drivers, armed with 38 calibre revolvers defended themselves by firing indiscriminately.

There was a fusillade of shots. Charles Libensky, a spectator, was wounded. Several negro strike breakers have been arrested. Later 2000 men and boys surrounded Roy Youngblood, colored and attempted to lynch him. Youngblood fell beneath the blows and kicks of his assailants, drew a knife and the police rescued him. Wm. Brown, colored, was shot in the groin. Geo. Bartlett, colored, was pulled from a wagon and beaten.

MEANS SPREAD OF STRIKE.

(Bulletin.)
Chicago, April 29.—The packers this noon delivered an ultimatum to the drivers that they must deliver goods to the boycotted firms or suffer discharge. This means the spread of the strike to the stock yards.

INJUNCTION TESTED TODAY.

Chicago, April 29.—The employers today tested the regard of the striking teamsters and employees for the federal injunction granted yesterday. The employers of teamsters sent 700 drivers out today with the injunction as their only protection, the employers relying upon the court's power to enforce its mandate. A Washington dispatch today says that in case the strike gets beyond control of the municipal and state authorities the governor's requisition for federal assistance will be promptly honored. Should interference be made with the transportation of mails, federal troops will be called into service. Colonel Dugan, commanding the department of the Lakes, is ready to supply such protection as necessary for the transportation of government money to and from the depots to the sub-treasury in pursuance of Secretary Taft's orders.

President Shaw of the teamsters union, does not favor troops in the city. Last night he sent a telegram to Secretary Taft and commanders of the post at Fort Sheridan saying the teamsters would furnish union drivers without compensation for all wagons doing government business and would obey the order issued by any teaming contract for the government. Some hotels, restaurants and markets are affected by the strike. The meat situation is also involved.

Claiming he was attacked by strikers, Charles King, some express company's driver, last night fired four shots, wounding Patrick Enright and Joseph Seigler.

The shutting off of the coal supply will be the policy of the strike leaders who believe that is the best way to win the strike. Plans have been made to tie up the delivery of coal all over the city.

APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

May be Made in Case of Coal Strike.
Dold is Confident Today That He Will Win.

Chicago, April 29.—President Roosevelt may be appealed to to end the strike as he did in the case of the anthracite coal miners. A resolution asking the President to step in and force the employers of Chicago to arbitrate the issues which are now being fought out, and so avert the necessity of bringing troops to Chicago and check the talk of a general war between capital and the wage earners, will be introduced in the Chicago federation of labor at a special meeting tomorrow. This plan, according to certain labor leaders will be brought to a head speedily.

Business men not directly involved with the employers' association in the strike may be asked to join hands with the Federation of Labor to sign a petition appealing to President Roosevelt to use his good offices in compelling tendants will be given a hearing Monday.

The full meaning of the strike has been brought home to the public. Boycott against "struck" firms was rigidly enforced, and conditions extraordinary even in a strike developed. Groceries, coal, ice and meats were kept away from the firms involved. Even florists, except those delivering for funerals, were affected. The hay, grain and feed drivers took action, shutting off the feed from all barns where strikes are on. Hundreds of horses stabled in the barns are threatened with starvation. Railway express companies and their patrons were especially hampered. At the headquarters of the railway express wagon drivers' union hundreds of requests were received by telephone and by business men in person asking that permission be given to make shipments, but all requests were refused.

Twelve arrests were made for interference with the injunction, all of them being made at one time and place. Two wagons loaded with coal approached the Union League club on Jackson boulevard, and when they attempted to drive into the narrow alley east of the clubhouse to unload the nonunion teamsters were attacked by a crowd of strike sympathizers, and a lively fight resulted. The wagons were plainly marked with copies of the injunction, and the police in charging the mob arrested 12 strikers. Two persons were shot and seriously injured by Charles King, a nonunion driver for the Pacific Express company. King was on a Blue Island avenue car when a crowd of strikers who had followed him boarded the car and attacked him. King drew a revolver and emptied it at his assailants. He shot none of the men who attacked him, but instead the bullets struck and seriously wounded two men who were standing near watching the fight.

MURDER

Charged Against Young Copeland At Mt. Vernon Today.

(Bulletin.)
Mt. Vernon, O., April 29.—Prosecutor C. S. Silliman this afternoon filed an affidavit before Squire James L. Leonard charging George Copeland with murder and criminal assault in the Bricker murder case. The correspondent for the Advocate could learn nothing regarding new evidence which has been secured against the man. No time has been set for a preliminary hearing.

MISS HELEN GOULD ILL.

Detroit, Mich., April 29.—Miss Helen Gould, who is in Detroit to attend the National Y. W. C. A. convention, is indisposed and may be unable to make an address today as planned. She is constantly attended by her private physician, her secretary, and her maid, and is not allowed to overtax her strength.

TEXAS TOWN

Wiped Out By Cyclone—Reported That 50 People Were Killed.

(Bulletin.)
Austin, Tex., April 29.—The town of Laredo was wiped out by a cyclone last night. It is reported this afternoon that 50 persons were killed and that many buildings were destroyed.

CAVERN

Of Unknown Extent in Hillside Seems to be Home of Many Huge Blacksnakes.

Danbury, Conn., April 29.—Workmen getting out rock discovered a cavern of unknown extent in the side of a hill on Broadview farm. Sup. George P. Foote of the farm, with a rope fastened around his waist, went down into the hole, discovering a sloping passage along which he could walk upright. A few minutes after Foote disappeared below the surface of the ground three huge blacksnakes scuttled out of the hole simultaneously with a frantic signal from Foote to be pulled out. Foote had gone about 40 feet and finding the passage steeply had thrown a stone ahead of him. He heard it rattle down for apparently hundreds of feet before there was a faint sound of splashing water. From the pit came a hissing sound as of hundreds of angered snakes.

PROMINENT PEOPLE HURT IN WRECK

TRAIN IS WRECKED NEAR GREEVILLE, S. C., RESULTING IN ONE DEATH.

Former Mayor Seth Low of New York and Daughter of H. W. Longfellow Are in Party.

Greenville, S. C., April 29.—A special train bearing Robert C. Ogden and a party of prominent New Yorkers, returning from Columbia, S. C., was wrecked near here today. W. W. Canning, a cook, was caught in the wreck and burned to death. Several of the guests were more or less slightly injured.

The injured are: Robert M. Ogden, secretary to Robert C. Ogden, fractured right leg, contusion and scalp wound; Prof. Henry W. Farnum of Yale, right arm broken and severe contusions; Mrs. Farnum, scalp wound and internal injuries; Mrs. J. G. Throp of Cambridge, Mass., a daughter of Henry W. Longfellow, scalp wounds and shock; Dr. St. Clair McKelway, editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, cuts and bruises about head and face; Bishop W. N. McVickar, Rhode Island, shock; Captain John F. McCoy, tourist agent, Pennsylvania railroad, scalp wounds; W. C. Kershaw, electrician, Jersey City, scalp wounds; C. B. Wilcox, dining car conductor, scalp wounds; D. R. Robins, dining car conductor, scalp wound; J. R. Hunter, engineer of wrecked special, left leg broken, and scalp wounds.

The train, which was composed of ten cars, left Columbia this morning for this city, where the party was to be received by the mayor. The train was composed of one baggage car, a smoker, two dining cars, six compartment cars, and an observation car. Ogden, who is a member of John Wanamaker's firm, had just been elected president of the conference for education in the south. News of the wreck was received here and a wrecking train and a party of physicians were dispatched at once to the scene. Details of the wreck have not been received as yet. Those in the party were former Mayor Seth Low, New York; Edward M. Shand, New York; Chas. B. Aycock, former governor of South Carolina; S. C. Mitchell, Virginia; John Graham Brooks, Dr. Wallace Buttrick, Dr. Edward L. Devine, Dr. A. S. Draper, new state commissioner of education, Prof. Henry W. Farnum, Yale; Dwight Kellogg, Rev. Dr. Arthur B. Kinsolving, St. Clair McKelway, Bishop McVickar, Dr. Edward Knox, Mitchell Robert Treat Paine, George Foster Peabody, and Rev. Dr. H. B. Frissell, of Hampton institute.

Four of the ten cars were burned. Some of the injured were pinned under the wreck.

SHORTAGE

In Athens County Officially Reported To Be Over $71,000.

(Bulletin.)
Columbus, April 29.—The report of the bureau of accounting on the investigation of Athens county was filed with the auditor this afternoon and shows a total shortage due the county of more than $71,000. Former treasurer, W. G. Hickman, is held for $39,741.83, of which he has paid $6,000 into the county treasury. Former treasurer E. G. Bidson, now of Youngstown, is held for $27,647.33, and others for small amounts.

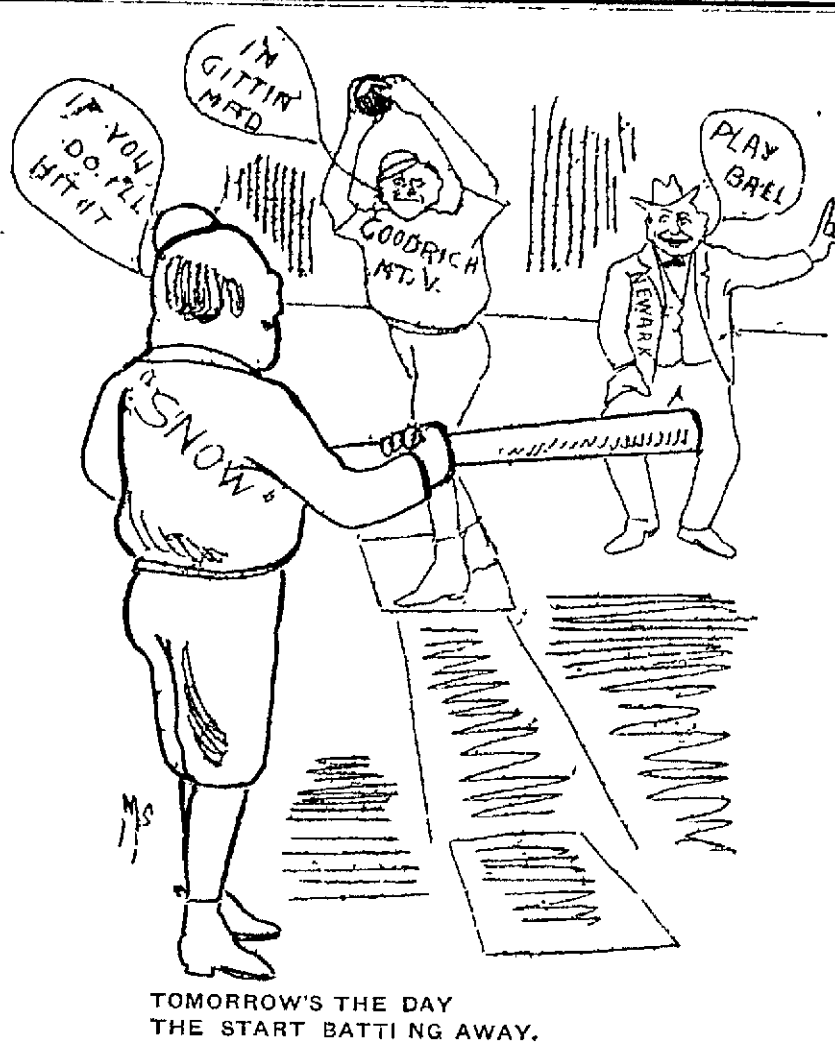

COAL TRUST

Will be Prosecuted at Cleveland—Several Indictments Returned.

Cleveland, April 29.—The local coal trust will be prosecuted. The grand jury this morning returned indictments against the executive committee of the retail coal dealers association. H. G. Brayton, J. J. Phillips, Charles A. Alldridge, V. Nyats, Charles Zetlemier, F. M. Cowdery, J. C. Gull, Wm. Schafer and E. D. Thomas. The men are charged with violating the act providing against restriction of trade under the Antitrust state antitrust law recently declared constitutional by the supreme court. It is alleged that the dealers combine and sold at an agreed schedule of prices. P. J. McIntyre, an independent dealer, sold below the prices and claims that his supply was cut off.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

For Newark and vicinity: Fair and colder tonight and Sunday.

KIBLER AND OWENS HOMESTEADS BOUGHT BY CHILCOTE & JONES.

Twenty-five Thousand Dollars Real Estate Deal Made Saturday—Land Will Be Divided Into 55 Lots—Work Will Begin At Once.

An important real estate deal was closed Saturday when John A. Chilcote and Ben B. Jones purchased the Charles H. Kibler and Robert Owens Homesteads and all of the land between North Fourth and Hudson avenue from Elizabeth street to Charles street. The old homesteads will be preserved with a large amount of land with each. The new addition is to be platted, and a new street is to be opened from Charles to Elizabeth parallel to Hudson avenue, and to be known as Kibler avenue.

The name of the old homestead will be preserved in the name of the new addition, which will be known as Kibler place.

WOMAN'S LAWYERS

Express Belief That Mrs. Rogers, Condemned to Die, Will Be Given a New Trial by Court.

Montpelier, Vt., April 29.—Lawyers and friends are encouraged to believe that a new trial will be granted Mrs. Mary Rogers, under sentence of death for the murder of her husband, for whom a reprieve until June 2 was granted by the governor pending an appeal to the Supreme court. The basis of hope is the intimation of Judge Rowell, made after the Supreme court preliminary hearing last night that the petition of counsel might be laid before the full court.

MILLIONAIRE PACKER'S DEATH.
Milwaukee, Wis., April 29.—William Plankington, millionaire packer and hotel owner here, died here this morning aged 60 years.

ON A STRIKE

About 2,500 Carpenters in Cleveland Have Voted to Go Next Monday Morning.

Cleveland, O., April 29.—The Amalgamated Carpenters of this city last night voted unanimously to go out on a strike Monday morning in an effort to force the carpenter contractors to increase the wage scale from 40 to 45 cents an hour. The contractors say they cannot pay the increased wages. About 2,500 carpenters will walk out every section of the city. It is also expected that the lathers and sheet-metal workers will go out on a strike Monday. Both these organizations are demanding increased wages. Fifteen hundred union painters have been on a strike for nearly a month. No settlement of the differences with the master painters is in sight.

BOWEN RECALLED

Official Announcement Is Made at Washington

MR. RUSSELL HIS SUCCESSOR

Minister Barrett Now at Panama Will Take Russell's Place in Colombia.

Washington, April 29.—Official announcement is today made at the state department of the recall of Minister Bowen from Venezuela, of the appointment of Minister Russell now at Columbia to succeed Bowen and of the appointment of Minister Barrett now at Panama to succeed Russell. Ambassador Thompson now in Brazil will be transferred to Mexico after MINISTER BOWEN.

Minister Conger, who is now on his way home from Pekin, has served there as ambassador for a month on two.

Washington April 29.—Secretary Taft is considering the advisability of ordering Minister Bowen at Caracas to report forthwith in Washington to explain the charges against Assistant Secretary Loomis which he conveyed to Secretary Taft in a personal letter. If President Roosevelt assents, this order will be issued immediately. This proceeding is to determine precisely the extent of Mr. Bowen's responsibility for the circulation of these charges. The official mind here is made up so far as Mr. Loomis is concerned; it is absolutely convinced of his innocence of any wrongdoing while he was minister to Venezuela, and has reached this conviction after a thorough sifting of the allegations. That being the case, it is felt here that Minister Bowen, in order to escape blame himself, must show that he did one of two things—either by private inquiry in Caracas he arrived at another conclusion as to the truthfulness of the charges, or that he did what he could to denounce them and to discourage their circulation in Venezuela.

BIG PRIZES

All Went to the Promoters, Who Split Up $3,000,000 Every Year for Fifteen Years.

Galveston, Texas, April 29.—Secret Service officers have unearthed evidence tending to show that four men owned the Little Beneficia or Little Mexican Lottery, which for the past 15 years has netted them annually about $3,000,000. The winning numbers were arranged in advance and 86 per cent of the prizes, it is charged, were won by tickets of numbers held by the promoters. It is said to be the most gigantic swindle of modern times.

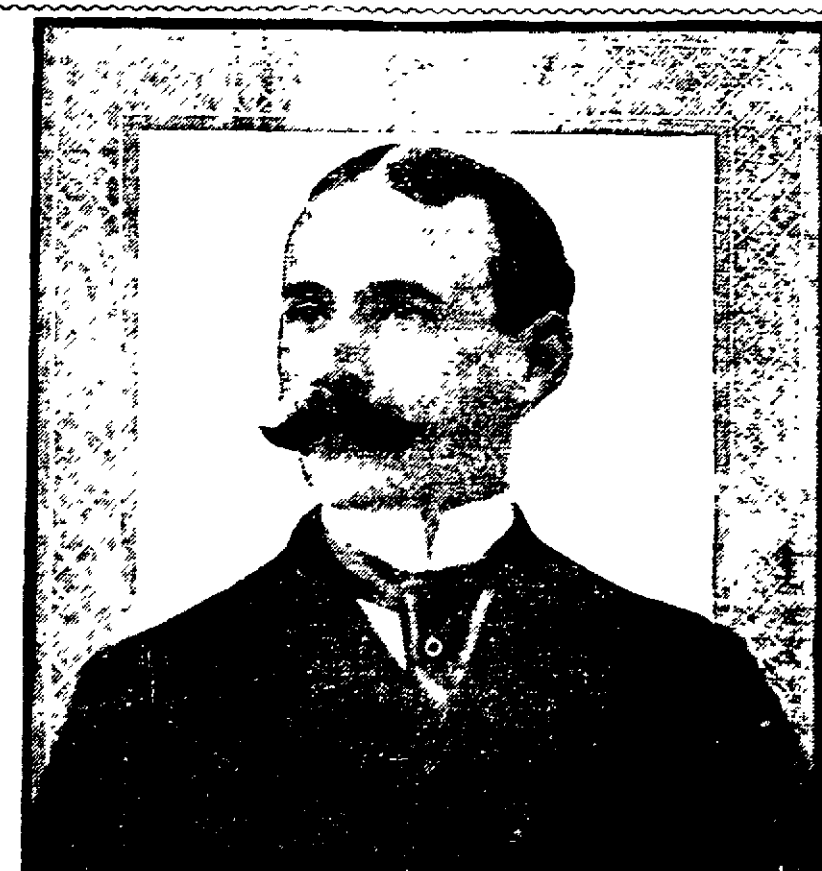

The officers have traced the recent home of two of the promoters to the City of Mexico, another lived in Denver and the fourth in Texas. It is believed all are in Mexico. If they have not already sailed for Europe. The Mexican authorities are co-operating with American officers.

Nearly $80,000 of property owned by two of the promoters has been located.

Russia's New Navy.

St. Petersburg, April 29.—The preliminary steps for the reconstruction of the Russian navy has been taken by the government. No definite plans as yet have been made public, however.

WELL KNOWN OPERATOR DIES.
Detroit, Mich., April 29.—George Ed. Loomis, one of the best known press editors and operators in the middle west, died here this morning of pulmonary tuberculosis after a long illness.

FRANCIS B. LOOMIS.

Secretary Taft may ask the authorities to explain the charges made against Francis B. Loomis, ex-Minister to Venezuela, now a assistant secretary of state. The official mind of Washington is convinced that Loomis is innocent of wrong doing while he was minister to Venezuela.

Modern Woodmen.

There was something doing at Hebron Camp, Modern Woodmen of America on Friday night. A big car load of neighbors from Cedar Camp, No. 4727, M. W. of A., of this city, including the officers and team of the camp, went out to Hebron and performed the work for a class of four candidates. Rees R. Jones presided as Venerable Counsel in a splendid manner, as did the officers of the camp. The four strangers were adopted into all the rites and privileges of Woodcraft. At the conclusion of the work a banquet was served and a symposium of happy and appropriate talks followed. Dr. Kramer acted as toastmaster and speeches were made by Neighbors W. A. Ashbrook, E. M. P. Brister, Rees R. Jones, Dr. O'Harrar and B. F. McDonald. A vote of thanks was returned to Hebron camp for its hospitable entertainment.

At the regular meeting of Center lodge, F. & A. M., of Johnstown, held on Friday evening of last week the sublime degree of Master Mason was conferred on Park Patton.

Newark lodge No. 97, F. & A. M., held special communication Friday night at which time the Fellowcraft degree was conferred on three candidates.

At the meeting of Newark lodge No. 623, I. O. O. F., held on Monday evening, there was an unusually good attendance of the members and considerable business of importance for the good of the order was transacted. The third degree was conferred on six candidates, and on Monday evening the initiatory degree will be conferred on several candidates. Beginning with the first of the month the degrees will be conferred in rotation, commencing with the initiatory degree on Monday night.

At the meeting of Johnstown lodge of Odd Fellows held on Saturday evening the second degree was conferred on one candidate. At the meeting to be held this evening there will be work in the first and third degrees.

The 58th anniversary of the establishment of Odd Fellowship will be celebrated by the Odd Fellows of St. Louisville tomorrow, Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. An interesting program of exercises has been prepared, and the event will be celebrated in an appropriate manner. It is hoped that as many Newark Odd Fellows as can possibly do so will attend.

GEN. LINEVITCH

IS SATISFIED WITH CONDITION OF RUSSIAN ARMY.

Retreat a Blunder—Says He Would Have Held Mukden—Army, Not in Danger.

Gunshu Pass, Manchuria, April 29.—General Linevitch granted an interview at his headquarters here, in the course of which he expressed himself as highly satisfied with the present condition of the Russian army and its readiness to assume the offensive. He manifested emphatic regret for the retirement from Mukden. The new commander-in-chief said that the peril to the army at that juncture was overestimated, and that the day was far from being lost when the retreat was ordered.

With his eyes gleaming with an indomitable energy, and emphasizing his words with a blow upon the camp table before him, General Linevitch exclaimed: "I would certainly not have retreated. I realize that it is easy now to pass judgment upon accomplished facts; but, nevertheless, I repeat I would not have retreated. I persuaded Kuropatkin to stand at Tie pass and we waited there for a time. We could have remained, but on account of certain administrative factors he considered it inexpedient, and the retirement was continued. After assuming command I gave the men a day's rest. The Japanese did not press us, as their condition was quite as bad as ours. As for that unfortunate retirement itself, any observer can convince himself that its significance and, especially its influence upon the army has been industriously and greatly exaggerated by the Japanese and the foreign press. The retreat was in no sense in the nature of a complete rout, proof of which is evident in the fact that in less than a month after the retreat the two armies which were thrown into confusion by the Japanese had been collected and fully reorganized. The first army did not require this, having retired in order."

General Linevitch attributes the greater success of the first army during the retreat to the relatively more advantageous position in which it was located. He admitted that there were heavy losses in both men and material during the retirement, and especially to the wagon train; but he declared that this also was exaggerated.

Powers May Move For Peace. Washington, April 29.—Expecting that Washington is destined to play an important part in the preliminary negotiations that will precede the cessation of hostilities between Russia and Japan, even though the American capital may not be selected as the scene for the actual peace negotiations, Baron Sternburg, the German ambassador, and Mr. Jusserand, the French ambassador, will sail for their respective countries soon after conferring with President Roosevelt when he returns from the west. Baron Sternburg will have several audiences with the emperor and Mr. Jusserand will see President Loubet and M. Delcasse, to whom will be communicated in an entirely unofficial way the earnest wish of the president that the war end at the earliest possible moment. Diplomats here believe the first real opportunity for the successful initiation of peace negotiations since the war began will exist with the ending of the impending naval engagement.

Position of Russian Army. Harbin, April 29.—In the last fortnight the Russian army on the right, left and center has advanced beyond the Spinghai position, and the Russian vanguard posts are now in the form of an inverted crescent, the left horn of which is considerably in the rear of Changtun, which the Japanese hold, and which is strongly fortified. The Japanese are now exerting a pressure against the Russian advance. On account of the nature of the country and the position of the opposing armies it is impossible to effect reconnaissances by small bodies of scouts, and work of this nature must be done by considerable detachments. These reconnaissances do not show at the present moment a Japanese turning movement in the direction of Kirin, but it is impossible to say what may be taking place along the railroad roads from Korea and the Yalu territory.

A Japanese fashion is the outfit below worn at the side beneath the chin.

Napoleon and Tobacco Smoke.

Although in later life Napoleon was a votary of the snuffbox, he was never known to attempt smoking hot once. The Persian ambassador having presented him with a magnificent oriental pipe, he wished to give it a trial. After being instructed how to proceed he desired his attendant, Constant, to light it. It was accordingly properly charged and lighted. We will let Constant tell the rest of the tale: "I obeyed and returned it to him. But scarcely had he drawn a mouthful when the smoke, which he did not know how to expect from his mouth, turned back by his palate, penetrated into his throat and came out by his nose, nearly blinding him. As soon as he recovered breath he exclaimed: 'Take that away! What an abomination! The brute! My stomach is quite upset.' In fact, he was so annoyed for more than an hour that he renounced forever all desire to try the experiment again."

DR. L. L. MARRIOTT.

He May Be Very Busy.

As a rule, without a single exception, when State Auditor Guilbert's corps of costly inspectors discovers a Democratic official whose accounts are out of balance, Mr. Guilbert sends for all the newspaper reporters and blows a blast compared with which Roderick Dhu's hugh was smaller than a penny whistle.

For weeks now, the facts about the Athens county treasury defalcation, running somewhere between $25,000 and $75,000, have been kept entirely from the public ear, so far as the State Auditor's end of the string is concerned.

There are some people unkind enough to say that the reason for this profound silence is because the parties implicated are Republicans, and comprise a small army of Republican statesmen. Hence the scape goat factory in the State House is being run double turn. Or that they think if it is kept still for a few weeks longer, it will never reach the public at all, because state news finds no publishers.

But the public should remember that Mr. Guilbert is a busy man. Only a few years ago he began as an $80 clerk in the State House. He has been eight or ten years State Auditor at $4,000 a year and is president and chief owner of a $10,000,000 Trust company doing business in the United States and Canada. And yet there are men who do not believe that "politicking" pays anything.

DEMOCRATS

Discussing Time and Place for Holding Their State Convention—Opposition to Columbus.

Columbus, April 29.—It is expected that within a few days Chairman Benjamin F. McKinney of Marietta, who presides over the Democratic state central committee, will call a meeting of that body in Columbus, at which the time and place of holding the next state convention will be determined. Some time ago the belief was very general that the Democratic convention would follow the Republican almost immediately and be held not later than the first week in June. Now, however, after sounding the different members of the state central committee in private correspondence, it is said that Chairman McKinney has discovered a majority sentiment in favor of a later convention than was formerly proposed. It is said that the early part of July is now the probable time, but it is admitted that the central committee is not a unit on this subject.

Prominent Democrats in Columbus favor a June convention and say that the sooner the party enters the field with its candidates and platform the better it will be for the outlook in November. Chairman Garber of the state organization committee is also of this opinion. The subject can only be settled by the committee and is certain to provoke a spirited discussion when it meets.

There is a generally accepted notion that Columbus will be the place, but this is not inevitable if other localities "get busy" and go after the prize. There is an even chance that Columbus can be beaten by any enterprising delegation in another locality appearing for the state central committee. Canton is likely to be a candidate for the honor, and if successful the convention will be held in the new Stark county auditorium, said to be one of the finest in the state. There is also an undercurrent in favor of Cedar Point, where the convention of 1902 was held under delightful conditions, so far as arrangements and natural advantages were concerned. The fact is that much dissatisfaction exists with Columbus, not on account of her location, but because of the city's attitude on frequent occasions in the past toward political conventions. The business of that city have become so accustomed to winning these gatherings as a matter of course that they no longer make any effort to obtain them or to entertain the delegates after their arrival. The only persons to show any interest in the matter are the representatives of the local hotels, and it will be admitted that they are amply repaid for all they do in their own and the city's behalf. Prominent Columbus Democrats realize this situation and would not object to seeing the convention go elsewhere. They are fully determined not to make any effort to bring it here, believing that the loss of it would prove a valuable lesson to the city and an ultimate gain in the future. The upshot of all this is that if other cities anxious to have the convention appreciate the opportunity and begin to make a canvass now there is more than an even chance that it may be taken away from the capital, if only as an object lesson.

TWO BULLETINS

That Will be of Interest to Growers of Grapes and Trees in Licking County.

Two bulletins will soon be issued by the Division of Nursery and Orchard Inspection of the Ohio Department of Agriculture which will be of interest to many. The first is entitled "Grape Pests in Ohio," and gives present condition of the grape industry and describes the principal pests most destructive to Ohio vineyards. Best known remedies are given, with course of treatment. This bulletin will be forwarded free of charge to anyone.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Newark Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your health. If you suspect your kidneys—if you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it is time to act, and no time to experiment. Use a remedy which is known to be safe and sure. Doan's Kidney Pills is that remedy, and if you wish to be cured of kidney trouble without experimenting, do not fail to use it.

P. Lisey, commission merchant, of 29 South 4th St., Newark, O., says: "I have had no occasion to use any kidney medicine since 1896, and therefore think more than ever of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me eight years ago and I made a statement for publication at that time recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. This statement I will repeat for the benefit of other sufferers from kidney troubles."

"For several years I was distressed and annoyed with pain in the back just over the kidneys, and whenever I stooped or tried to lift anything the trouble became acute. Treatment had failed to bring me relief and at last I laid aside the prescriptions I had been using and went to Crayton's drug store for a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of this remedy proved so effective that my back has been sound ever since I used Doan's Kidney Pills eight years ago. I therefore have no hesitation in recommending them to others."

THE POWERS-MILLER CO.

MR. SCHMOLL MAY SUCCEED KEARNEY

FORMER NEWARK MAN MAY GO TO PITTSBURG FROM WHEEL-
ING, W. VA.

President Cassatt's Inspection Trip—
Ohio River and Northern Charter.
Local and General News.

From semi-official sources comes the information that G. A. Schmoll, superintendent of motive power of the B. & O. railroad at Wheeling, formerly of Newark, will be transferred to Pittsburgh, and that his territory will be extended so as to include almost all of that formerly under A. Kearney, resigned, as well as the territory which he already has charge of. It is now said to be the plan of the management to give him the superintendency of all lines west of Pittsburgh, with Superintendent E. T. White of Baltimore, in charge of the lines east of Pittsburgh.

Cassatt's Inspection Trip.
Ravenna, O., April 29.—President Cassatt, First Vice President McCrea and 11 other high Pennsylvania officials, accompanied by B. & O. Engineer Kinsman of Baltimore, and President Didier, of Pittsburgh, made up the personnel of an inspection party here yesterday over the new Pittsburgh-Cleveland air line via Youngstown and Ravenna. The new service will be ready May 15 and will consist of two new trains, morning and evening, each way. The route is practically curveless between Cleveland and Youngstown, 75 miles.

Secured a Charter.
Columbus, O., April 29.—The Ohio River and Northern Railway, to be operated by steam has secured a charter from the department of state. The line will extend from East Liverpool to Lisbon, in Columbiana county. The capital stock is $50,000 and the incorporators are John C. Wallace, Alfred T. Kelly, J. M. Vordrey, G. W. Clark and D. M. McLane.

Change for Snyder.
Youngstown, O., April 29.—H. C. Snyder, formerly division freight agent of the Erie railroad at Bradford, Pa., has been appointed to succeed the late K. L. Henderson as division agent of the Erie here.

Conductors Off For West.

Among the members of the Order of Railway Conductors of Licking Division No. 166, of this city, who will leave for Portland, Oregon, next week to attend the 20th session of the Grand Division of the Order of Railway Conductors of America, which opens in this city on May 9, are the following: Conductor F. M. Harris (delegate from Licking Division 166), wife and daughter, Miss Mary D. Harris, Conductor W. M. Lamb and wife, Conductor C. W. Smith and wife, Conductor S. F. Moore, wife and daughter, Conductor T. J. Andrews and wife, Conductor J. R. Ellis and son, Conductor S. H. Smith and wife, Conductor Taylor Spence and Conductor J. Shaughnessy. At the conclusion of the convention the Newark people will make an extended trip through the western country and expect to be gone until about the first of June.

Protest Against Rate Reduction.

Atlanta, Ga., April 28.—The recent proposition of J. Pope Brown, chairman of the Georgia Railroad Commission, to reduce the passenger rate in Georgia from three to two cents per mile was protested against by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Order of Railway Conductors, and unions of the blacksmiths, machinists and telegraphers, boilermakers, railway trainmen, carpenters and joiners, clerks and car men. These organizations employed an attorney especially to represent them, who urged that such a reduction would work against the prosperity of the state and lead to a reduction in the number of railroad employees as well as of their wages. The Travelers' Protective Association also protested that a reduction as proposed would result in fewer trains and poorer service.

Test of Speed.

B. & O. engineers, Aaron Brandt and A. J. Ellerman made a trial test of speed of the regular engines a few days ago. Brandt's engine, No. 1930, made an average speed of 45 miles per hour from Benwood, W. Va., to Newark. Ellerman's engine, No. 2220, made an average of 43 miles per hour between the same points.

Accommodation Trains Withdrawn.

Accommodation trains Nos. 113 and 114 on the B. & O. between Columbus and Zanesville will be withdrawn. This order is effective May 14. On that date also a new dining car and a new parlor car will be placed in service. No. 114 leaves Newark for the east at 7:20 p. m. and No. 113 leaves Newark for Columbus at 7:20 a. m.

Railway Notes.

Guy R. Leniz, clerk in the office of the round house, went to Parkersburg Saturday afternoon to spend Sunday with friends.

Brakeman W. C. Shambaugh is off duty for a few days.

Conductor D. E. Leedy has been marked up for duty.

Brakemen W. R. Masters and H. Carlyle have reported for duty.

Conductor Bean has been granted permission to be off until May 2.

STATE'S MONEY

Is Appropriated to Repair a Private Dormitory

ATHENS COUNTY INCIDENT

Senator Who Fostered Appropriation
Is Member of Company That Owns the Building.

Columbus, O., April 28.—Since the startling exposure of the shortage in the Athens county treasury many rumors have filled the atmosphere about the capital concerning other doings in that bailiwick. Within the past week there have been conducted at the Capitol and at Athens an investigation regarding an appropriation of $5,000 by the General Assembly for the ostensible use of the Ohio University, which is located within the town of Athens. On page 610 of the laws enacted in 1904 appears an item in the general appropriation bill setting aside the sum named for the "equipment, repairs, and maintenance of the girls' dormitory." From members of the Senate finance committee it is learned that this item was inserted at the last moment at the request of Senator David H. Moore, a member of the committee, who lives in Athens. On the face of it there is nothing that might be deemed improper in this allowance. The money was paid to the university last March through the First National Bank of Athens, which Senator Moore is the cashier, upon the order of L. M. Jewett, secretary of the university.

But it turns out that the dormitory is not owned by the state. It is not on university land. The records show that it is owned by the College Place Improvement company of Athens. This body is a stock company and was incorporated March 9, 1895, by David H. Moore, Henry O. Blenness, W. E. Peters, H. E. Dickason and S. N. Hobson, all save Peters being officers or employees of the First National Bank. Its capital stock is $20,000, and its avowed purpose is the constructing and maintaining buildings for tenement houses. The dormitory which is constructed has been rented to the state for $1,800 a year.

The David Moore who was one of the incorporators and stockholders of the concern is the member of the finance committee which allowed the appropriation. It was on his motion that the item was inserted. The question has been raised as to the power of the state to repair at public expense a building in which it is a tenant. It is also a question whether the money can be lawfully used for the purpose of equipping the same. Above all is the question of the right of a member of the General Assembly to participate in a transaction which will inure to his own financial benefit. An inspection of past appropriation bills discloses that this item of expense is an extraordinary one. The rent of the dormitory has always been included in the current expense of the institution. So far as has been discovered there has been nothing done in the way of repairing and equipping the building. Secretary Jewett is reported to have said that the money would be used for the purpose of paying the rent. But the allowance is for repairing, equipping and maintenance of the dormitory. The rental expense is supposed to have been included in the general appropriation for the university. The query as to why the $5,000 extra was secured remains to be answered. Some of those who are investigating the queer transaction think that they have the solution.

Very recently a normal school for the training of teachers was established at Athens as one of the departments of the university. It is expected that this will produce a larger influx of students than ever before, and consequently larger facilities for accommodating them will have to be secured. Certainly a larger dormitory will be needed to meet this unusual demand. While the state has been erecting library buildings and other structures upon the university land no move has been made for the erection of a dormitory for the female students, the trustees evidently deciding that private ownership was the better policy. In connection with this matter there is also in existence a report that the money of the university has been used for other purposes than appropriated.

Two years ago a dinner was given at the Columbus Club in this city to the members of the Senate at which certain officers of the university were present. The charge was afterward made, and it has never been officially denied, that the cost of this dinner was defrayed from the funds of the institution. Its purpose was to facilitate the easy passage of the appropriations asked for at that time. It is understood that Special Examiner Frank Rochester, of the Auditor's office, may be detailed to look into the dormitory transaction. Mr. Rochester was formerly steward at the Athens Insane Hospital and is well acquainted with the surroundings of the university and its workings.

MRS. M'GLAUGHLIN DIED SATURDAY

WOMAN WAS STRUCK BY ENGINE
AT EAST MAIN STREET
CROSSING.

Her Husband Was Killed Nearly Five Years Ago by Blowing Up of Sawmill at Glenford.

Mrs. Martha McGlaughlin, who was so seriously injured by being struck by a PanHandle railway engine on the fourth of September, 1904, near the East Main street crossing, died at her home rear of 240 East Main street, at 3:30 o'clock on Saturday morning, having lapsed into unconsciousness on Wednesday morning.

The deceased was twice married. Her first husband was Amire Elliott, from whom she was divorced many years ago, and her second husband was James McGlaughlin, who was killed at Glenford, O., on August 21, 1900, by the blowing up of a saw mill engine. She was the mother of sixteen children, of whom seven survive.

The funeral services will be held at the home, rear of 240 East Main street, on Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Locke, and the remains will be taken to Zanesville on Monday morning, where they will be interred in Greenwood cemetery. The surviving members of the family have the sympathy of all their friends.

JOHN KELLY

Brother-in-Law of Miss Barbara Moritz
Died Saturday at Columbus—Burial Here Monday.

Mr. James Kelly, aged 55 years; brother-in-law of Miss Barbara Moritz of East Locust street, died Saturday at St. Anthony's hospital in Columbus of locomotor ataxia, and will be buried in this city from St. Francis de Sales church on Monday at 9 a. m. Interment at Mt. Calvary.

MRS. GEO. W. FALKNER

Died of Tumor at Her Home on Orchard Street Saturday—Funeral
Sunday Afternoon.

Mrs. Anne Catherine Falkner, wife of George W. Falkner of No. 142 West Orchard street, died at her home Saturday morning after an illness lasting but a few weeks. Her death was due to a tumorous growth, from which she has suffered for several months.

Mrs. Falkner was 58 years old and has lived in Licking county for seventeen years, coming here from Glenford township, Perry county, where she was born.

The deceased is survived by her husband and two children, Mrs. Emma Drake and Miss Sara Falkner. Three sisters and two brothers also survive Mrs. Falkner.

The woman was a devout member of the Lutheran church and Rev. J. C. Schindel will conduct the services from the house Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The remains will be interred at Cedar Hill cemetery.

MRS. ELLEN MOORE.

The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Ellen Moore, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John McNally, 413 North Fourth street, Friday morning, were held at the St. Francis de Sales church on Saturday morning at 6:30 o'clock. Rev. Father E. M. O'Boylan officiated. At the close of the services the body was placed on a B. & O. train and taken to Mason City, W. Va., the former home of the deceased for interment.

MRS. FLORA P. M'FARLAND.

Martinsburg, O., April 29.—The remains of Mrs. Flora Pierson McFarland were laid to rest Friday. Services were conducted at 11 o'clock at the house, the Rev. Mr. Gregg officiating. The deceased, who was about 70 years of age, is survived by her husband, Mr. Addison McFarland, who is critically ill at this time.

MRS. LUCINDA BIRD.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE

Heartily Approves of Peruna For the Nerves.

In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Miss Julia Marlowe, of New York City, writes the following:

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, as a nerve tonic. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to anemic nerve centers. The nerve centers are the reservoirs of nervous vitality. These centers become bloodless for want of proper nutrition.

This is especially true in the spring season. Every spring a host of invalids are produced as the direct result of weak nerves.

This can be easily obviated by using Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the difficulty by correcting the digestion.

Digestion furnishes nutrition for the nerve centers. Properly digested food furnishes these reservoirs of life with vitality which leads to strong, steady nerves, and thus nourishes life. Peruna is in great favor among women, especially those who have vocations that are trying to the nerves. Peruna furnishes the lasting vigor for the nerves that such people need.

Thousands of testimonials from women in all parts of the United States are being received every year. Such unsolicited evidence surely proves that Peruna is without an equal as a nerve tonic and a vital invigorator.

Buy a bottle of Peruna to-day. If you do not receive all the benefits from Peruna that you expected, write to Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

NOVEL METHOD OF SUBTERRANEAN TRANSPORTATION.

The rapid transit commission of New York city has recently accepted a novel device for underground passenger transportation. It is nothing more than a development of the escalator or moving-platform idea. The first of these contrivances will probably be operated under Thirty-fourth street in a subway capable of accommodating eight platforms, two of which will be stationary. Two will travel three miles an hour, two six miles an hour and two nine miles an hour. The fastest platforms will be fitted with cross seats.

AT HIGH SCHOOL

Pleasing Entertainment Was Given on Friday Evening by the Hudson School Children.

A very pleasing entertainment was given at the High school chapel by the pupils of the Hudson avenue building under direction of Mrs. Annis Lawhead, a teacher of the beginners, and Miss Katherine Simonds. The first part of the program consisted of songs and recitations and dramatized stories. The second part was given by Miss Simonds' juvenile dancing class. The feature of this part of the entertainment was a miniature wedding by two of Miss Simonds' pupils. A flatter the wedding ceremony the class danced the Lancers. A number of pleasing solos filled in the program, among which were Mrs. Will Davis who played a beautiful piano solo, and Mrs. W. C. Miller, who sang "O Promise Me" during the wedding ceremony. About three hundred persons were present and all were much pleased. The proceeds of the entertainment will go to the Hudson school library fund.

MARRY MAN WHO SMOKES.

At a woman's club the other day, says the Chicago Chronicle, an elderly matron said to some young girls: "Never, on any account, think of marrying a man who doesn't smoke. I have had a good deal of experience with men, and I have found that non-smokers are invariably peevish, querulous, full of a nervous ill humor. Especially in the evening after dinner, when he should be at his best, the non-smoker is hard to put up with. The smoker, after dinner, lights his cigar or his cigarette and at once falls into a placid mood, a happy, contented angelic mood. But the non-smoker paces the floor restlessly, finds fault with this and that and everything, and at a word flies into a nervous and hysterical rage. "I am convinced that Providence intended men to smoke and for that reason placed tobacco on the earth. With the man who doesn't avail himself of this kindly gift of Providence there is something wrong, there is much wrong, and if you want to marry happily, reject every non-smoker who proposes to you."

WHAT IS GOING ON IN THE FIELD OF SPORT

LARGE CROWDS FOR TRACK MEET

JUNE 3 WILL BE GALA DAY FOR NEWARK—HUNDREDS WILL COME.

Twelve High Schools Have Already Agreed to Enter Teams in Big High School Meet.

Newark will have many guests next June on the occasion of the big track meet to be held at Idlewild Park on the third of the month. Manager Rogers has received favorable replies from Steel High school of Dayton and from Oberlin High school. Columbus will send her representatives to Newark and a large crowd of ribbon be decked young ladies and gentlemen will accompany the teams. Mansfield will take advantage of the excursion rates and send a company of rooters with her track team.

Other schools in easy reach of Newark will send their track teams and rooters so that at a conservative estimate, four or five hundred people will be in the city.

Work has already been commenced on the immense program of the track events which will be gotten out for the occasion. The Newark merchants will be asked to use the program of the meet for advertising purposes and a committee will be in Newark next week for that purpose.

There seems to be a misunderstanding about the meet, some having an idea that colleges will be permitted to enter. No person except one who is a pupil in good standing in any high school will be permitted to take part in the contests. The managers of the various track teams will be asked to furnish a list of the names of the members of his team. The principal will be required to certify that each person on the team is a member of the school and in good standing.

So far, twelve high schools have signified their intention to enter the meet. This means that 125 or 150 persons will enter the contest.

TRACK TEAM

At Granville Goes Through Program for Wesleyan Event on Athletic Field Saturday Morning.

The Denison track team preliminaries were held Saturday morning on the athletic field at Granville when the entire program of events for the meet with Wesleyan next Saturday was gone through with by Captain Chambers' men.

Chambers injured his knee badly in training Friday and was unable to take part in the events, but he will in all probability be in shape for next Saturday's meet. Otterbein and Kenyon will face the Granville boys on the 13th and 20th of May, the former at Westerville and the latter at Granville.

LANE'S PITCHING

Wins Praise From Idlewild Men and Only Needs Head Work to Make Good Twirler.

Earl Lane, the young Johnstown twirler who journeyed to Newark this week to show Manager Snodgrass his curves, is doing nicely and his pitching in the practice games was good. The man is well built for baseball and if his head work is steady in the big games, he has a chance with Idlewild.

LOP SIDED

Score at Y. M. C. A. Park Friday When North End Boys Were Defeated by Score of 30 to 2.

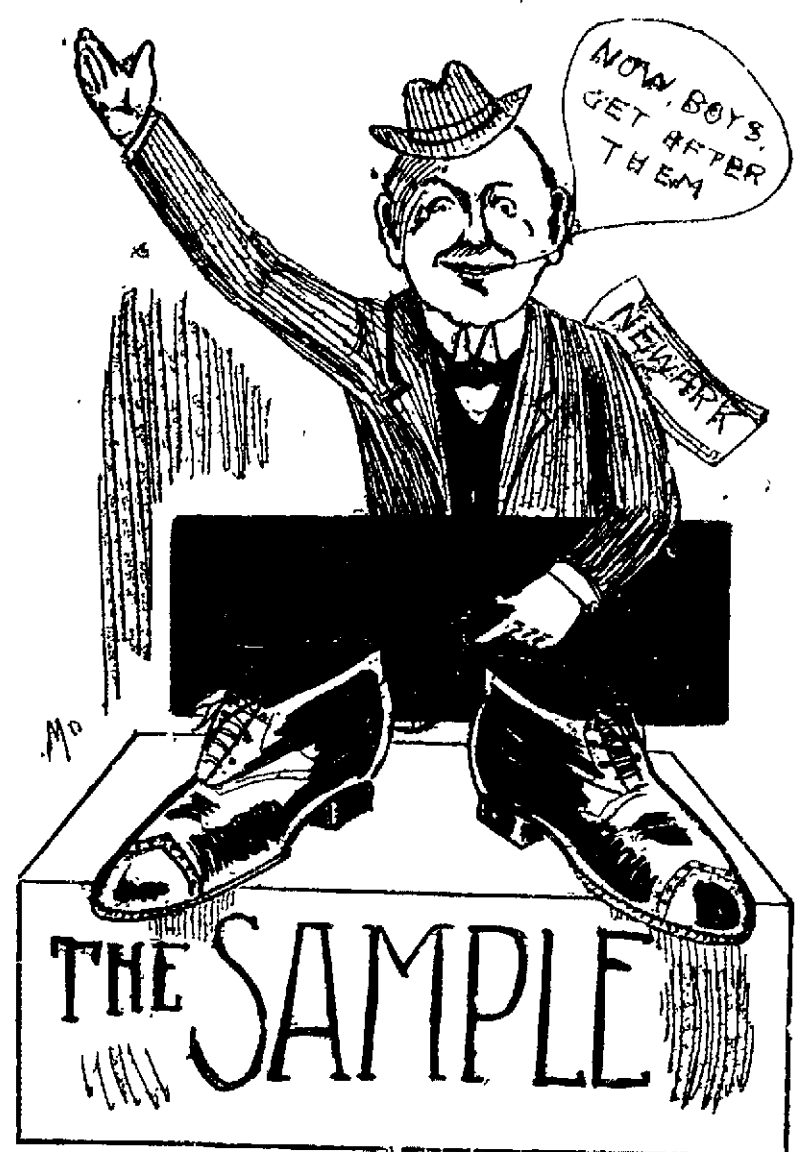

The South End team of the City Grammar School league defeated the North Fourth street team at Y. M. C. A. athletic field Friday afternoon, the score being 30 to 2. The South End boys gave their battery excellent support and each man was backed up splendidly. The North Fourth street lads played ragged ball and their batting was poor.

Mr. Pinneo was unable to be present and Joe Miller umpired the game. It was necessary to threaten to call the game at the end of the third inning on account of the crowd on the diamond.

SPLENDID BUILDING LOTS.

Why go 'way beyond the corporation limits for a building lot when property highly desirable at low prices and on easy terms is more accessible? Wells' Park Addition is one block from the city car line. It adjoins beautiful Idlewild Park. Well graded, trees planted, cement walks, splendid water, no city tax, prices low, terms easy. See W. C. Wells tomorrow or any day at the Park Addition.

Read any book for 2 cents per day at Norton's.

MR. BECKMAN'S OFFER FOR THE FIRST HOME RUN.

Sunday's game will be called promptly at 3:15 o'clock.

LEFTY SNYDER

Will Pitch Against Mt. Vernon Unless Something Unforeseen Turns Up on Sunday.

Captain Hollander of the Idlewilds has given out the following line-up for Sunday's game with the Mt. Vernon team: Mc Kown ss, Hollander 2b, Walton rf, Wratten 3b, Linderbeck m, O'Brien lb, Alcock 1, Snodgrass c, Snyder, Knepper, Langton or Lane, pitcher.

Although it is not certain Snyder will probably pitch the game. He is in good condition and has a string of curves that will puzzle Mt. Vernon "in the same old way." Snyder was a hard problem for the Knox county boys last year and also in '03. It's up to Lefty to keep up his reputation.

MT. VERNON'S LINEUP

Quartet of Twirlers Will Accompany Knox County Boys To Newark for Sunday's Game.

Mt. Vernon, O., April 29.—Mt. Vernon's probable line-up for Sunday's game will be as follows: Clark lf, Hager rf, Strong lb, Riley m, Headley 2b, Reynolds 3b, Humphreys ss, Miller c, Sprinkle, Keelan, Lillis or Daup pitcher, Posey, utility man.

NEWARK CLUB WINS PHELLIS TROPHY

THE SHOOT AT CINCINNATI RESULTS IN VICTORY FOR THE LOCAL CLUB.

Score was 268 to 262—Orr of Newark, Makes High Score With 48 Out of 50 Birds.

The members of the Newark Gun club returned to the city this morning in a joyful mood after having won the Phellis trophy from the Cincinnati Gun club. The score was close, Newark winning by only six birds, but the cup is now in possession of Newark boys and things are serene in the club.

As usual Mr. Jesse Orr of Newark, starred himself and killed 48 out of fifty birds. The next highest score was 47 out of 50 by Barker of Cincinnati.

The Newark team arrived in Cincinnati about 10:30 and were escorted to the grounds by Mr. Faran, of the Reception Committee. The time until dinner was occupied with practice shooting, the visitors being given every opportunity to become accustomed to the grounds. After a bountiful dinner served to the guests by the members of the local team the match was started at 3:10 and lasted until 4:30, the Newark team winning by a score of 268 to 262. At the end of the first round Newark and Cincinnati team No. 1, were tied on 131, but in the second round the local team dropped down badly. High score was made by Orr of Newark, with 48. Barker of No. 1 team, was second, with 47.

The day was cloudy with high wind. The light was not good during the match, but the scores were not affected, and taken altogether the shooters made a very creditable showing.

The referees were A. C. Dick and Ed Trimble. Officials scorers Arthur Campbell and J. Penn for Cincinnati, and E. S. Browne for Newark.

Over 100 shooters and spectators were present. Among the visitors were Ed Browne, Fred King, Jesse Orr, John Kiefer, S. Burrell, Earl Murphy, Charles Schaller, John Keefe, F. A. Hulshizer, Lon Fisher, John Taylor and Jennings of Newark; C. H. Cord, Z. Craig, Lindemuth, Spangler, E. Rike, Carr and Cain of Dayton.

The Dayton team challenged the winners and will shoot at an early date, and possibly a team from the Cincinnati club will also take part.

Sweepstakes shooting ended the day's sport and was kept up until dark. The scores follow:

COURT WAS READY

For Holt's Trial When His Counsel Announced His Flight from Marysville, Ohio.

Marysville, O., April 29.—Court convened here for the trial of Cassius Holt indicted for embezzlement. After the jury had been seated and the witnesses were ready to testify E. F. Guthrie, of Marion, the defendant's attorney, reported that his client could not be located and is now a fugitive from justice. The case was postponed until next Wednesday.

Holt had not been arrested since he was indicted, as he promised his attorney that he would appear. The authorities are searching for him.

BIG BILL DOUP SLIDES TO FIRST

MT. VERNON'S TWIRLER FROM AMITY INTRODUCES NEW FAD IN BASE RUNNING.

Believes That Cloud of Dust Would Bother the Umpire—Notes from Mt. Vernon.

Big Bill Doup, than whom no better fellow ever donned a baseball uniform, took his first lesson in the art of sliding Wednesday, and if his Amity friends could have seen him come to the soil they would still be applauding. No matter what the trade or profession there is always some joke for the new men.

The players discussed the advisability of sliding to first and Bill took up with the feature, believing that a cloud of dust could usually be raised so that it would bother the umpire.

The boys were bunting and running them out and when Bill took his turn at bat there something doing. He laid one down in good style and got away from the initial sack. When about 15 feet from the pillow he raised into the air, and after describing a curve more or less like a rainbow, alighted about an arm's length from the corner where the turn is made for second. He came down like a ton of brick and landed all over. As he arose he remarked, "No more of that for your Uncle Bill, until he has his hip pads in place."

Bill is the life of the team in practice and is doing some good work. Whether he secures a berth or not the practice is doing him good and will come in handy later. The raised pitcher's slab bothers him somewhat, and, in fact, has been bothering the other twirlers. Manager Goodrich says that the "mound" may be taken down a trifle, although it is not as high as those in many other diamonds. —Mt. Vernon Republican News.

HUGHIE COLLINS

Anxious to Go to Mt. Vernon and Ivor Wagner Names Big Price for Services.

A message from Hughie Collins, on Thursday, stated that he would come here for $110 per month. Collins is a good twirler, but his price is high. On Thursday Ivor Wagner was released by Columbus. Secretary Greer called him down when he asked for $200 per month.

Phipps, the Baltimore man, may not come here at all. He has written Manager Goodrich a letter, stating that he has a certain thing in the East and does not feel like making the long trip to Mt. Vernon and still have but a chance to make good.

On Thursday Manager Goodrich stated that, while all of the players are somewhat sore and stiff as a result of the work of the week, the team is stronger than that of last year in many respects, especially in batting. He believes that he can pick out a team for Sunday that will be almost certain of defeating the Idlewilds. —Mt. Vernon Republican News.

PEDESTRIANS

Have No Rights, Calmy Declared Duke's Chauffeur When Taken Before the Judge.

New York, April 29.—Romar Grasser, chauffeur for J. B. Duke, was arraigned in the West Side court on a charge of driving his automobile at an excessive rate of speed. A bicycle policeman, Kuprien, said the prisoner had been caught on Broadway after he had been diving a car at the rate of about 22 miles an hour. Mr. Duke, the officer added, was in the car, but the chauffeur was allowed to take him to his home, which was not far away. Grasser was asked by Magistrate Crane:

"Do you think that people who walk have any rights in the streets?"

"No," replied Grasser, calmly.

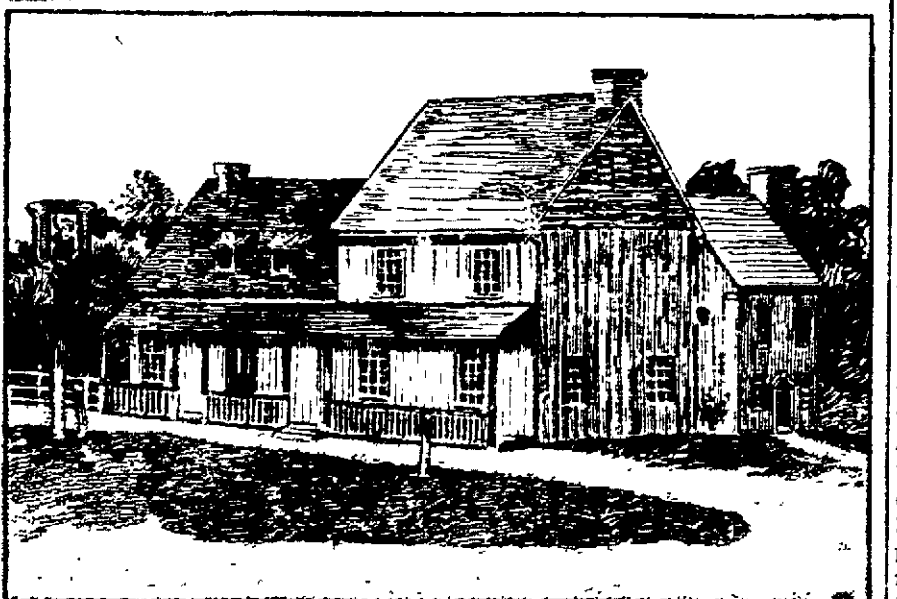

Benj. J. Duke, brother of J. B. Duke, was in court to furnish bail. He explained that Grasser was a cent importation from France and could not understand English.

"Do you ever stop to let any or cross the street?" inquired the magistrate.

"No," said Grasser again, head warning look from Mr. Duke.

The "No" to a polite "Yes, you don't." "If you do," remarked the judge, "he held the man under his feet" will "you deserve the biggest" cheerfully.

AT PLYMOUTH CHURCH

Lecture to be Given May 5 by Mme. Tsilka Will be Treat—Miss Stone's Companion.

A rare treat is in store for the people of this city in the way of a lecture delivered by Mme. Katerina Tsilka who was the only companion of the missionary, Miss Ellen Stone, at the time of, and during her captivity by the brigands of Macedonia.

Mme. Tsilka will be accompanied by her husband and her child, Baby Elentcha, who was born among the Balkan brigands.

Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka, as will be remembered, were captured about September 3, 1901, and were released February 21, 1902, being held for a ransom of $10,000. Mme. Tsilka is the daughter of a wealthy and prominent gentleman of Macedonia, who sent her to a boarding school, where she became a Christian. Upon his learning that she had become a Christian, he drove her from home, but has since repented and peace has been restored between the father and child.

Mme. Tsilka came to the United States and fitted herself for a medical missionary. She has diplomas from four American schools, the Mooly schools of Northfield, the Sloan Maternity, the Presbyterian Training School for Nurses, and the school of Obstetrics, of Cornell university. She is to lecture at Plymouth Congregational church on Fourth street the evening of Friday, May 5, and it is expected that the lecture will be an interesting one.

BISHOP HARTLEY

Examines Class of 112 Who Will Be Confirmed at St. Francis de Sales Church Sunday.

The Rt. Rev. James I. Hartley arrived on the noon B. & O. train Saturday and will remain over Sunday at the St. Francis de Sales. He examined a class of 112 Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock and found the candidates well instructed and ready for the sacraments. The class consists of over 60 boys and 50 girls and about ten adult converts. The program as far as known at the present writing for tomorrow will be as follows: The first mass will be at 7 a. m., which will be celebrated by Rt. Rev. James I. Hartley who will give communion to all who are to receive confirmation later in the day. The second mass will be at 10. This will be a high mass coram episcopo, in the presence of the Bishop. This mass will be sung either by Father O'Boylan or one of the visiting priests. In the afternoon the Rt. Rev. Bishop will enter the sanctuary at 3 o'clock and prepare for the ceremony of confirmation. He will be assisted by Rev. Joseph M. Wehrle, rector of Bellaire, who will be first assistant priest to the Bishop. Rev. B. Fitzpatrick Temperaner, Rev. Charles H. A. Watterson, East Newark, and Rev. John H. Wagner, Cambridge, will be deacon, and Rev. L. W. Mulhane master of ceremonies. Father O'Boylan will attend to each candidate and give their names to the Bishop. The Bishop usually delivers a sermon at the principal service. The music will be the same at high mass as that which was given on Easter Sunday. After confirmation all will be finished by benediction of the blessed sacrament, followed by the Te Deum. It is also announced that a small class from Jersey township will be confirmed at the same time with those of St. Francis de Sales.

PICTURE

Painted by Mrs. A. C. Hatch of This City Attracts Attention at Columbus at Shriner Meeting.

Columbus, April 29.—On exhibition at the Masonic temple, where the nobles of the Mystic Shrine are now in session, is a picture that has attracted and held the attention of all who have seen it.

The picture is the scene of an oasis in the Arabian desert. The principal figure being an Arab offering his devotion to Allah at high noon. His head is bowed to the ground in token of his extreme adoration, while his patient camels are standing near awaiting their master.

The coloring and the delicate sense of light and shade, together with the uniqueness of the subject so well handled, combine to make it a most fascinating scene for the Shriner, who themselves have this week been journeying over the arid sands to the Mecca beyond.

The painting is the work of Mrs. Arthur C. Hatch of Newark, O., whose productions on canvas have achieved more than local celebrity.

There were a few houses started in Tallmadge Place addition last Thursday.

MOURNED

As Dead 40 Years, But Dickinson Was Living in the West—He Leaves a Fortune.

Richmond, Ind. April 29.—Mrs. Hannah Ains, a well known woman of Richmond, has received a letter from Missoula Junction, Mont., telling her of the death there recently of her father, Isaac Dickinson, who disappeared mysteriously 41 years ago and of whose whereabouts nothing was ever known from that time until the present. Mrs. Ains was informed at so that she and her brother George Dickinson, of this city, are the heirs to a fortune left by Dickinson.

In 1864 a prominent young business man of Richmond left here ostensibly to go to Washington to get a patent on a butter churn taking considerable money. That was the last time he was ever seen or heard by relatives.

Dickinson's wife died years ago and his daughter is now the wife of Eliza Ains of Richmond. Charles Dickinson, a nephew of Isaac, has been living in Montana for years, and when the death of Isaac Dickinson at Missoula came to his notice he investigated and found that the man was his uncle, whose family had mourned him as dead for more than 40 years. The mystery of his disappearance, however, is no nearer solved now than at the time of its occurrence.

Robert Dick, a jeweler in this city, and Samuel Dickinson of Los Angeles, Cal., are brothers.

LAWYER LEVY IS VERY HOPEFUL

DECLARES THE PROSECUTION HAS FAILED TO MAKE OUT CASE AGAINST HIM.

Hard Blows Dealt the Show Girl by Mr. Rand Have Unnerved Fair Defendant.

New York, April 29.—Attorneys for Nan Patterson, the show girl, today expressed confidence in the defendant's acquittal. The defense will offer no testimony and the arguments will begin Monday.

Lawyer Levy declared today that the one reason for not calling any witnesses for the defense is because the state has failed to make out its case. According to Levy all the conditions are favorable to his client. The presumption of innocence must cling to Nan until it is taken away by competent evidence. This evidence, he asserts, the prosecution failed to produce. He also claims that Rand failed to show that J. Morgan Smith purchased the revolver with which Young was killed and this failure, following the positive declaration made by the prosecutor in his opening speech, he argues, will be hard to overcome before the jury. Levy scoffs at the idea that the jewelry which was presented to the court yesterday to great consternation of Mrs. Smith, and which was pawned in Stern's pawnshop where the revolver was purchased, can have any bearing on the case. The articles were pledged October 5 and 20, 1904, more than four months after the shooting. He laughs at the idea that the pawn ticket bearing those dates were renewal tickets. "Everybody knows that tickets are not renewed at the end of a year," was the manner in which he dismissed this subject.

The point drawn from Mrs. Smith that Young had promised to marry Nan on which the prosecution will dwell, really in favor of his client, Levy says. The evidence of her sister shows that Nan has been painted blacker than she really was and that the relations with Young were based on the promise of marriage.

Taken as a whole the evidence Levy asserts, is weaker than at the former trial. The testimony adduced by the prosecution, he believes, is stronger in favor of the contention that Young killed himself than that Nan fired the fatal shot. "No one will be lieve that Nan Patterson would kill a man who had agreed to take care of her and supply her liberally with money during his absence," said Levy in summing up the matter.

But while Nan's attorneys profess to be confident of the outcome, the young woman herself is not so sanguine. The hard blows dealt her cause yesterday by Rand have unnerved the fair defendant. The arguments of her attorneys do not offer much consolation to Nan in view of what she experienced during the closing moments of the hearing and their words have failed to reassure her.

DASHED POISON

At His Sweetheart, for Whose Trouseau He Sent His All, and Then Tried Suicide.

Logansport, Ind., April 29.—Alleging that after he had spent all his money in purchasing her a trousseau, his intended bride, Miss Stella Kinneman, was proving false to him, Elmer Meeks tried to dash carbolic acid in the girl's eyes and to end his own life by swallowing what remained in the vial.

Meeks entered the room of Mrs. Emma Taylor, where Miss Kinneman was visiting, with a vial of carbolic acid in his hands.

"I am tired of getting the worst of it," he declared as he raised the bottle to his lips. Mrs. Taylor knocked it out of his hand, burning her hands and wrists. Meeks left and returned a few minutes later with another bottle. Without a word he dashed part of the contents at the girl's face. She turned her head and her face but was slightly burned. The acid fell on her clothing and burned through to her flesh. Then Meeks drank what remained in the vial. Meeks is in jail, but the girl refuses to appear against him.

HANDS AND FEET

Tied to a Chair and Pepper Thrown in His Eyes, Explained Why Kied Went Wild.

Logansport, Ind., April 29.—During the trial of Wm. Kied in the police court, the wife, who charged him with drunkenness, told the court he had set her on fire. Kied admitted that he had been drinking, but said he was not drunk. He admitted that he had set fire to a woman and said he was placed in jail on a chair, and his hands and feet were tied. When the pepper was thrown in his eyes, he went wild. He said that there was when he was acting like a wild man. Mrs. Kied admitted to being drunk and the judge ordered the two daughters to be severely reprimanded by the court and sent home with orders to behave themselves.

THE ROSE MAIDEN

Story of the Cantata Which is to Be Sung by Chorus at Auditorium on Next Thursday Evening.

Cowen's "Rose Maiden" which is to be sung by the big chorus of the combined Newark and Granville Choral Societies next Thursday evening at the Auditorium, with two hundred voices and an orchestra of forty performers, is extremely interesting and pleasing for several reasons. It is, perhaps, the most popular of all secular cantatas—has been sung oftener and by larger choruses than any other cantata. The poem is adapted from the German by A. E. Francillon, and the musical setting is in Cowen's happiest and most brilliant vein, heightening the fanciful, pathetic and tragic words of the poem. The story of the cantata is as follows:

"The Queen of the Flower Fairies, weary of a life of unbroken calm, prays of the newly returned Spring that he will bestow upon her also the gift of love that he has bestowed upon man. The Spirit of Spring warns her of the rashness of her request and of the great risk she runs, but finally yields to her entreaties, and changes her, while she sleeps, into the form of a beautiful earthly maiden. Under the name of Roseblossom she wanders through the world—to find the love for which she yearns. She meets with an unhappy mortal—a girl, who having been betrayed and deserted by her lover, loses her senses and dies broken hearted. But, undeterred from her search, Roseblossom becomes the wife of a forerunner, with whom she lives for a time in such perfect happiness that, when he is slain by a bandit, she can not survive his death:

"Tearless she gazed upon him, And thro' the night and day Tearless she kept her vigil 'Till he was borne away. 'Thro' weary months of winter She only woke to weep, And when returned the swallows, She, too, had fallen asleep." The elves of her former happy realm bewail her fate and curse human love as fatal to peace and happiness, and end with the sad lament: "Yea, when as die the roses, Must die the truest heart; They that rejoice must sorrow, And they that love must part. But yet, O God, we praise thee, Who blindest night and morn; Too lovely were Thy roses, Were they without a thorn."

ISLE OF SPICE.

B. C. Whitney's new musical comedy, "Isle of Spice," will be presented at the Auditorium Wednesday May 3 with the complete cast, scenery, costumes, and mechanical and electrical effects that were used in the long five months run at the Majestic Theatre, New York City, which has recently been brought to a close. The book and lyrics are by Allen Lowe and George E. Stoddard, and Paul Schindler and Ben M. Jerome wrote the music. The company includes such well known and popular artists as Alice Yorkie, the well known prima donna, Chas. A. Pusey, who has won for himself an excellent name as a comedian of rare talent, Charles A. Fulton, Edith G. Harry R. Williams, Carrie Hawkins, Ted Collins, Maye Mudge, Richard Gussie, R. "FOL-DE-ROL"

Is Susan B. Anthony's Reply to Grover Cleveland's Magazine Article on Women's Clubs.

"Ridiculous! Pure fol-de-rol!" This is the comment Miss Susan B. Anthony makes on Grover Cleveland's article in the Ladies' Home Journal on women's clubs and woman's suffrage, say the Rochester correspondent of the New York World.

"Well," she exclaimed, "What does Grover Cleveland know about the sanctity of the home and about the woman's sphere? Why, isn't woman herself the best judge of what woman's sphere should be? The men have been trying to tell us for years. We have no desire to vote if the men would do their duty. Why are not the laws enforced in regard to saloons, gambling places and disorderly houses? The women want a chance to see what they can do to make the present laws effective."

"Mr. Cleveland remarks that the hand that rocked the cradle is the hand that rules the world. That would be all right if you could keep the boys in the cradle always. But the minute they are able to go to school temptations beset them on all sides. They have to pass any number of saloons and gambling places on their way to and from school. And all these places are stretching out their iniquitous arms to call in the boys. The men will do nothing about it, and the women can't. It is no wonder the women demand a vote. Out in Colorado where equal suffrage now prevails, nearly every town in the state has gone 'dry.' Even Denver, one of the most corrupt cities in America a few years ago has almost been cleansed.

"It is from just such men as Grover Cleveland, who write such gush, merely because the magazines will pay him well for it, that most of the objections to woman suffrage come.

"Mr. Cleveland is inspired to a tirade on women's club and organizations. Did he ever stop to think that the men are responsible for these even? Why should a woman settle down to the 'hum-drum' as he calls it, of home any more than a man? The men are content to leave their money in some saloon, and then go home drunk to abuse their wives and children.

"I think," concluded Miss Anthony, "that Mr. Cleveland is a very poor one to attempt to point out the proper conduct of women."

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY.

Wiles-Erman will pay back your money if Pepsikola fails to cure dyspepsia. "Never in the history of this store," said one of the above druggists to a representative of wholesale drug house, "has there been so great a demand for a new remedy as there is just now for Pepsikola."

Newark people are coming in every day inquiring if it really is true that we sell Pepsikola with the understanding it will cure dyspepsia or pay back the money. "Of course this guarantee plan is quite unusual—but we do just as we agree and we will hand back your quarter without the least argument if you are not decidedly benefited." "As a matter of fact," continued the druggist, "not one person in fifty has asked for their money, and it may surprise you to know at least a dozen within the last ten days have been in to tell us how much they have been relieved and how glad they are to know at last there is a remedy that really will cure indigestion and dyspepsia."

Pepsikola braces up and tones every nerve and fibre, helps digest the food, puts new life into the digestive organs, improves the appetite, clears up the complexion, cures biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue and sick headache.

Try it for ten days, and if you don't see a big improvement, stop in and tell Wiles-Erman & Co., and they will hand back your money cheerfully and without argument.

tend to them a cordial invitation to visit us next winter.

"As for this person Burke, you will, if possible, make your departure without seeing him again. If this is not possible, I trust your sense of decorum will suggest that you confine yourself simply to that kind of courtesy that a lady always bestows upon a worthy person of the lower classes. Your affectionate mother."

"NANCY ARABELLA GATES. "P. S.—No hint of this unfortunate affair must reach your brother. Claude is an ideal gentleman; it would be a great shock to his exquisite sensibilities to know that his sister had held familiar converse with a hired man. I cannot imagine how you came to be so unlike the rest of my children. Helen, of course, is not responsible for her peculiarities. N. A. G."

From Mr. Gates to his daughter Gertrude:

"My Dear Little Girl—Your mother gave me her letter to post, and quite incidentally I took the liberty of reading it. With Helen's permission I had previously read your recent letters to her. I have never interfered with your mother's discipline, but in this case I feel called upon to make a few remarks."

"First, you needn't come home until you choose. North Platte ranch is a healthful place, and you seem to be gaining strength and much else that is of great value."

"Second, if you care for this Mr. Burke and he asks you to become his wife say 'Yes' and count on my blessing and a substantial dowry. It will be a refreshing change to have a real man to call son. At present I have none, either by birth or acquisition."

"Third, there are no classes in this country. Each man is what he makes himself. My grandmother was a Burke and an Irishwoman, and I've always been proud of the name and the ancestry."

"Lastly, your father is very glad he has kept near enough to one daughter to learn how to help the other. Your admiring father."

"JAMES BURKE GATES."

"N. B.—If my son Claude and old Pete Stauffer's silly grandson are types of 'ideal gentlemen,' I would rather you would marry a hired man. J. B. G."

Telegram to James Burke Gates: "Have followed your advice. Dear love to Helen. GERTRUDE."

One Hen's Eggs.

The efficacy of "one cow's milk" in bringing up babies has become an established belief. Few are they who have not at some time heard of the virtues of this system of feeding a baby, but that the principle has a wider application is a new thought."

A young architect in one of the large cities has a little son to whom he is naturally devoted. The child is rather delicate, and his father is desirous of nurturing him according to the most approved methods. The little man's appetite has to be tempted in every direction but one. Eggs he delights in and gladly accepts one at each meal. The father was born on a farm and is inclined to be suspicious of any eggs found within city limits, but not long ago he discovered what seemed to him an honest marketman."

"Can you furnish me with fresh eggs?" he demanded.

"Yes, sir; we can," was the answer.

"Perfectly fresh?"

"Perfectly."

"Laid the same day?"

"Well," said the man doubtfully, "we could guarantee a small quantity that way."

"They must be perfectly fresh," recapitulated the fond father. "They must be three in number. They must be laid the day they are left at my door, and they must be one hen's eggs."

They Took a Walk.

An amusing anecdote is told of Louis XVIII. of France.

This inoffensive monarch took breakfast one morning; then his ministers called upon him.

"Well," said the king, "how are the public affairs?"

"Getting along very nicely, sire," said the ministers.

"Hum! In that case," said the king, "I think I will go and take a walk."

Next morning after breakfast the ministers called again. "Well, how do the public affairs get on today?" asked the king.

"Very badly indeed, sire," said the ministers.

"Hum!" exclaimed the king. "In that case I think I will go and take a walk."

Next day no ministers called on the king.

"What has become of my ministry?" said the king after breakfast.

"Sire," said the palace functionary who was in attendance, "parliament has turned out the ministry."

"Ah!" said the king. "Then it's they who have taken a walk this time, eh?"

The First Tramways.

Tramways, as their name implies, were originally made of pieces of wood laid in line as a track for wheels and had been used from very early times in collieries and quarries.

The earliest recorded use of iron was when a "plateway" was laid at Whitehaven. We read also of cast iron rails laid in Coalbrookdale in 1767 and of the combination of an iron tramway with wooden sleepers in a colliery near Sheffield owned by the Duke of Norfolk, which was promptly torn up by the laborers, who feared a reduction of wages, when the designer, John Carr, had to flee for his life.

This tramway, which some have falsely derived, not from "train," a wooden beam or bar, but from one Bonham Outram, had flanges on its outer edge, and it was not until 1789 that the flange was wisely transferred to the tire of the wheel as we have it now. London Express.

From Mrs. Gates to her daughter Gertrude:

"My Dear Daughter. Your sister is quite ill—prevented with nervousness because I took your letter from her. However, I always obey the dictates of duty regardless of the consequences to any one, and under the care of your father and Mr. Payne I trust she will soon recover."

"I desire your immediate return to Boston. You may make Helen's illness an excuse to Amy. Give our kind regards to her and her husband and ex-

A POEM BY JEFFERSON.

Veteran Comedian's Views on a Future Life.

Through the kindness of the late Joseph Jefferson's old friend, E. C. Benedict, the New York Tribune is privileged to publish these lines by the comedian on "immortality." Read at this time the fable will seem to many persons like a veritable message from beyond the grave. Painful invention and quaint humor are the obvious characteristics of this unpretentious bit of verse, and it expresses a conviction that its author cherished with steadfast faith all his days. Mr. Benedict writes:

"One day last summer when Mr. Jefferson and Mr. Cleveland were taking luncheon on board the Onondia in Buzzards Bay the conversation drifted to the subject of a future life. Mr. Jefferson expressed himself as very grateful for having had more than his share of the joys of this life and as being prepared to meet at any moment the common fate of all. He said he had lately been 'scribbling some doggerel' on the subject, and he recited his lines to us. I asked him for a copy of them, which he said he did not possess, but he promised to send me one. In February I reminded him of his promise and received a signed copy of the verses, which he entitled 'Immortality.' It seems as though these lines construct a beautiful bridge between faith and reason."

IMMORTALITY.

By JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

Two caterpillars crawling on a leaf

By some strange accident in contact came.

Their conversation, passing all belief.

Was that same argument, the very same.

That has been "proved and conned" from man to man.

Yea, ever since this wondrous world began.

The ugly creatures.

Deaf and dumb and blind.

Devoid of features.

That adorn mankind.

Were vain enough in dull and wordy strife

To speculate upon a future life.

The first was optimistic, full of hope;

The second, quite dyspeptic, seemed to mope.

Said Number One, "I'm sure of our salvation."

Said Number Two: "I'm sure of our damnation!"

Our ugly forms alone would seal our fates

And bar our entrance through the golden gates.

Suppose that death should take us unawares.

How could we climb the golden stairs?

If maidens shun us as they pass us by,

Would angels bid us welcome to the sky?

I wonder what great crimes we have committed.

That leave us so forlorn and so unpitied.

Perhaps we've been ungrateful, unforgiving.

"Tis plain to me that life's not worth the living."

"Come, come; cheer up," the jovial worm

replied;

"Let's take a look upon the other side.

Suppose we cannot fly like moths or mil-

lars.

Are we to blame for being caterpillars?

Will that same God that doomed us crawl

the earth.

A prey to every bird that's given birth.

Forgive our capor as he eats and sings

And damn poor us because we have not wings.

If we can't skim the air like owl or bat,

A worm will turn 'for a' that."

They argued through the summer; autumn

nigh.

The ugly things composed themselves to die.

And so to make their funeral quite complete.

Each wrapped him in his little winding sheet.

The tangled web encompassed them full

soon;

Each for his coffin made him a cocoon:

All through the winter's chilling blast they lay.

Dead to the world—aye, dead as human clay.

Lo, spring comes forth with all her warmth and love!

She brings sweet justice from the realms

above.

She breaks the chrysalis, she resurrects

the dead.

Two butterflies, ascend encircling her head.

And so this emblem shall forever be

A sign of immortality.

that did not seem to disturb the prom-

Anecdotes Told About Original-tor of Rip Van Winkle.

INTERVIEWING AN INTERVIEWER

How the Veteran Actor Turned the Tables on a Reporter—Why He Drew the Line on a Thank In the Drama—An Experience With Yale Students Who Interrupted Him—His Fondness For Walking.

The last illness of the late Joseph Jefferson led to the telling of innumerable anecdotes. The aged actor had an eventful life, possessed a keen sense of humor and was very fond of recounting his adventures, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Stories, therefore, were told by him as frequently as of him.

"I have been told that you are very shy of interviewers and very hard to interview," asked a reporter of Mr. Jefferson some time ago.

"That all depends upon the manner in which I am approached," replied the actor. "That reminds me of an experience I had some years ago in a western city. A card was brought to me, and I went down into the parlor to see the sender. As I entered the room a tall youth, with long hair pushed off his forehead and turned behind his ears, surveyed me with a cool and patronizing air. I was really quite embarrassed by his lofty and superior manner."

"You desire to see me?" I asked. He pursed up his lips and, with another cool survey, gave me a patronizing nod without a word.

"By this time I was quite crushed. He leaned back in his chair and, taking a notebook and pencil from his pocket, prepared to put down what I might have to say. His unruffled manner was now quite intolerable, and I determined to be revenged upon the earliest opportunity."

"His first question, without looking at me, was, 'How old are you?'"

"I replied at once, 'Ninety-two.'"

"He had to look at me now, and a faint glimmer of sympathetic surprise overspread his hitherto immovable face."

"Ninety-two," he said. "You really don't look it."

"No; I carry my age very well. And how old are you?"

"This came so suddenly upon him that he was quite taken aback and replied, 'Twenty-four.'"

"Indeed!" said I. "You don't look it. I now took out my notebook and pencil and fired off a list of questions that fairly took his breath away. In less than five minutes I had drawn from him the population of the town, its principal products, the name of the mayor and the general statistics relating to its prosperity. I then bade him good evening."

Jefferson had a prejudice against elaborate scenic effects. Not so his son, Charles B. Jefferson, who was formerly his manager. That gentleman is an apostle of realism. More than that, he introduced the tank in the drama. "The Dark Secret" languished until he put a tank in it. That one experience made Charles Jefferson a firm believer in the business policy of giving the public whatever it demanded, good or bad, on the stage.

When he broached the subject of the tank to his father the latter looked at him in silent disgust. A few days later, when the old comedian heard the scenes read in which the tank was to figure, he sighed and said:

"Well, my boy, it's bad, very bad, but I'm afraid they will have to go and see it. It's too bad, too bad. I suppose the public must suffer. They can't help themselves."

And then when they went to look at the tank, very much against the actor's inclination, and the younger man, in his zeal in showing how the thing worked, fell in and had to swim out. Joseph Jefferson said it was a just punishment. He then and there washed his hands of the tank. A few months later Charles cornered his father alone one day and told him he had an important proposition to make.

"I have an idea," said he. "Of how we can rejuvenate 'Rip' and make it one of the most popular successes of the day."

"More of your nonsense?"

"No nonsense at all. You say yourself that a play, to be perfectly done, the story of the play should be completely acted. Now in 'Rip' part of the story is told and not acted."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, Rip tells, you know, how he crosses the river, jumps in and saves the girl from drowning. Now, why not act that instead of tell it? We could have a tank, you could come out in a boat and dive in to rescue the girl. The sight of Joe Jefferson climbing up a bank out of real water with a wet and dripping body in his arms would draw the public like a magnet. What do you think of it?"

"Joe Jefferson said he thought it was the biggest case of impudence it had been his misfortune to hear for a long time."

"I really think father was angry with me for the suggestion," said the manager, and he laughed over the remembrance.

Joseph Jefferson was interrupted in an odd manner during his last appearance in New Haven, Conn. He was playing in "The Helmsman" as Dr. Pangloss, the doctor, and, as he sat at that city, he was interrupted by a student of Yale who interrupted him—his fondness for walking.

THE GREATEST EPOCH OF MARRIAGE

The first is the most crucial time. If for the first time the greatest event in your married lives is about to occur, how expectant, how wistful up in it you find yourselves. You try to overlook, but in vain, that element of uncertainty and danger that you have been led to expect from the experience of those mothers and fathers who have struggled through this ordeal in ignorance of what it is, and what it does.

If at this time every expectant man and wife might know of this greatest of boons, devised for the express purpose of alleviating and dispelling the suffering and consequent danger of childbirth, how quickly would all doubts and worry be dispelled.

Mother's Friend is an invaluable liniment for external massage, through whose potent agency countless mothers have been enabled to experience the joy of parturition for the first time without danger to themselves or their offspring.

THE FIRELESS STOVE

Every housewife, says Geo. H. Murphy, United States Consular Clerk at Frankfurt, Germany, knows that a pot of coffee can be kept hot for a considerable time without the aid of fire, simply by wrapping it in a dry towel in order to hinder the escape of heat. A fireless stove, or hay-box, which Mrs. Peck, wife of the director of the Industrial school at Frankfurt, recommends as a most serviceable article of kitchen furniture.

At first Mrs. Peck used the box merely for the purpose of keeping finished food warm, but it was not long before she discovered that the process of cooking continued in the box. She thereupon extended its use, making a series of experiments which resulted in pleasant surprises. She soon found that she could finish in the box all boiled and roasted meats, sauces, fish, soup, vegetables, fruit, puddings, etc. Of course the box cannot be used for breadstuffs, cutlets, and the like, articles whose chief attraction lies in the crispness resulting from rapid cooking on a hot fire, but when food of this kind is being prepared it is a great comfort to the housewife to know that the rest of the meal is ready and hot in the box.

In general it is found that two or three minutes of actual boiling on the fire is amply sufficient for vegetables, while roasted meat requires 20 to 30 minutes. Most articles should remain tightly closed in the box for two or three hours, though they can be left there to keep hot for 10 or 12 hours, if necessary. Rice, dried beans, lentils, dried fruit, etc., should first be well soaked in cold water. After being allowed to boil for from two to five minutes, one to two hours in the box will prepare them thoroughly for the table. Soups are greatly improved by being allowed to develop for two or three hours in the hay-box.

The hay-boxes now being offered for sale in German stores are usually lined and partitioned with hay, felt, etc., and the receptacles are furnished with coverings which can be securely locked. Such boxes are useful when food is to be transported, for instance from restaurants; but there is one serious objection to them—their immovable felt and upholstery may become moist and moldy. A home made hay-box will usually be found cheaper and more practical. Any kind of pots can be used although earthen ones hold the heat best. When the pots have been placed in the box without lifting the lids, they should be covered with a pillow and the lid at once securely closed.

The chief advantages of the hay-box may be summarized as follows:

1. The cost of fuel can be reduced four-fifths or even nine-tenths.
2. The pots are no made difficult to wash; they are not blackened and they will last a long time.
3. The food is better cooked.
4. Kitchen odors are obviated.
5. Time and labor are saved.
6. Men and women working in the fields or having night employment can take with them hot coffee, soup or an entire meal.
7. When different employments make it necessary for the various members of a family to take their meals at different hours this can be arranged.
8. The kitchen need not be in disorder half of the day.
9. Warm water can always be had when there is illness in the house.
10. Milk for the baby can be kept warm all night in a pot of water.
11. Where workmen's families live crowded in one or two rooms the additional suffering caused by kitchen heat is obviated by the hay-box.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

OFFICIAL SAYS ORRINE CURES THE LIQUOR HABIT.

Superintendent of Public Printing Tells of Remarkable Cure in His Office.

The following statement from F. W. Palmer, Public Printer of the United States government in Washington, will bring hope of relief to thousands who suffer from the most horrible curse that afflicts humanity. He writes:

"My attention was recently called to one of the employees of this office who had, through the habit of intoxicating drink, become so inefficient as to be on the verge of dismissal.

"Six weeks' treatment with Orrine not only cured the appetite, but practically all the signs of dissipation disappeared. It is a pleasure to me to acknowledge the value of a remedy which brings results so beneficial.

"Orrine is a guaranteed cure for the liquor habit. Take or give it without publicity or loss of time. It can be administered secretly in tea, coffee or food, for which purpose No. 1 should be bought. Orrine No. 2, in pill form, is for patients who wish to be cured of this terrible habit. The price is $1 per box. Ask us about Orrine—we do not hesitate to recommend Orrine as the best and only cure for the liquor habit." F. D. Hall, 10 North Side of Square, Newark, O.

How British Cities Manage Public Utilities

Glasgow Was the First City to Challenge the Supremacy of the Telephone Trust A Glance at Edinburgh

By FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS

[Copyright, 1904, by Frederick Upham Adams.]

XL.

GLASGOW'S experience with telephones should be of interest to those citizens of this country who are complaining of extortionate rates for inferior service. As usual, the Scotch metropolis was the first city in the kingdom to challenge the supremacy of the telephone trust, which in Great Britain goes by the name of the National Telephone company.

The fight for a municipal franchise was a complicated and interesting one. In 1911 the imperial government through its postoffice department proposed to take over the control of the telephone system of the United Kingdom. At that time the National Telephone company will be compelled to surrender its property at its actual market value without a penny additional for good will or franchises. The municipalities expect to arrive at some agreement with the general government by which they will be left in partial control of their plants and to share in its profits. By this it may, the last privately owned telephone will disappear in about six years from this date.

It is more than ten years ago since Glasgow proclaimed revolt against the high charges and bad service of the private telephone company. A committee of the city council reported in favor of establishing a municipal plant, and, without going into details, it may be stated that on March 1, 1900, Glasgow obtained the first license ever granted to a city for the purpose of constructing and operating a telephone system.

The work of construction was begun in July, 1900, and up to the present time Glasgow has expended $1,350,000 on its telephone plant. While the city contains only twenty square miles of territory, the telephone wires reach out over nearly ten times that large a district.

Under the old telephone company no effort was made to reach the suburban area. The private company catered only to the congested district and imagined that it would lose money if it improved the service, extended the scope or lowered the rates. Under its management the average annual cost of a telephone was $60 or more. It took from one to ten minutes to make a connection.

The Glasgow telephone service is the best I have ever inspected. I was informed that statistics showed that the average time required to make a connection was less than fifteen seconds. I made a test on my own account and called up ten subscribers. Of the nine who responded the average time from unhooking the receiver to answers from those addressed was fourteen seconds. It should be explained that the telephone booth is practically unknown in the office of a Glasgow business man. The instrument is on the edge of his desk, and the receiver and transmitter are in one piece.

The rate to a subscriber for a service with an unlimited number of calls over the entire system is $25.50 a year. There is no installation charge and no dues of any kind other than the annual payment of this amount. A toll service is rendered for $17 a year, with an additional charge of a penny for each outward message, with unlimited inward calls free. On a party line with more than four subscribers the rate is $6 per annum, with an unlimited number of calls.

There are 11,000 subscribers to the municipal telephone system of Glasgow. The private company predicted that the insanity of the management in reducing rates and giving decent service would result in financial ruin, but the investment showed a profit of $100,000 a year.

The cleansing department of Glasgow is an interesting institution. It owns thousands of acres of farm lands where once were nothing but bogs and marshes. To these farms are conveyed the refuse products of the streets. On them are stone quarries and brickyards owned and operated by the city. There are also great factories. Connecting the factories and the farms is a system of steam railway, the city owning more than 700 railway cars and a large number of locomotives.

In 1882 Glasgow purchased the small private electrical plant for about $75,000. From this modest beginning it has developed a comprehensive system modern in every particular. It now represents an investment exceeding $5,000,000, and the profits last year amounted to $340,000. This does not include $20,000 paid for taxes. As has been stated before, all public enterprises in Great Britain pay taxes and are thus on the same footing for purposes of comparison as private industries. Even a fire department pays taxes on every dollar of its assets. After marking off $185,000 for depreciation—a most liberal allowance for a new plant—the department placed the balance to its credit.

Glasgow purchased the private gas plants in 1869 and has made profit on the investment every year since then. This great industry now has a capital account exceeding $10,000,000, and the gross profits last year passed the $1,600,000 mark for the first time in the history of the enterprise. When the original purchase was made it was arranged that the owners should receive in perpetuity annuities and stock valued at more than $2,000,000. The city has now adopted the policy of purchasing at a premium these annuities and last year wiped out more than one-third of the amount. Under private management gas cost consumers from $1.25 to $1.50 a thousand feet, but this has been steadily reduced until the rates now stand at 48 cents for motive power and 54 cents for lighting. When the plant is fully paid for, which will not be many years at the present rate of profits, the citizens of Glasgow will pay not more than 30 cents for gas, though it costs much more for oil and coal in Scotland than in any part of the United States.

It is nearly forty years since Glasgow started Great Britain by declaring war on the slums and tenements which disgraced the city. The property owners refused to remedy conditions and the city took radical steps. It pushed through parliament a bill giving it power to condemn and purchase insanitary property. Armed with this act, the city authorities of Glasgow wiped out whole districts of insanitary property, and the city started by constructing several model tenement houses.

Glasgow now owns millions and millions of dollars' worth of dwellings and is one of the world's greatest landlords. Its competition with private landlords is friendly, but wonderfully effective. The city fixes a rate of rents beyond which others cannot go. It rigidly enforces building and sanitary laws which have greatly reduced the death rate.

Glasgow has municipalized all the common services with the exception of cemeteries. It is the owner of profitable markets and slaughter houses; it maintains a splendid system of baths and washhouses; it possesses a magnificent art gallery and has built a "people's palace" which combines a winter garden, art gallery, museum, reading rooms, theater and concert hall; it furnishes hydraulic power at cost; it spends vast amounts on parks, music and entertainments. These and other functions are financed and managed by the elected representatives of the city.

Party lines are absolutely ignored when it comes to the election of members of the city council. The man who has served his people faithfully seldom is opposed when election day arrives.

The city hall of Glasgow does not remind the visitor of any civic structure in the United States. No swarms of loafers, ward heelers and office brokers or seekers hang about its entrance or lounge in its halls. You are not permitted to smoke or carry a lighted cigar. One sees business men, architects, engineers, bankers and others who have occasion to visit the various departments. The atmosphere is that of a well regulated bank or great mercantile establishment. It is the business office of a municipal estate worth more than $90,000,000.

There is no army of parasites drawing salaries for work which is not performed. There is no line of citizens ready to commit perjury in order that they may escape their fair share of the burdens of taxation. There are no go between employed by dishonest wealth to extort by bribery favors from those who have taken an oath to faithfully serve their city and community. Aldermen meet in public to devise ways and means which shall promote the public good. There are no ward leaders. There is no gang. There is no pull. There is no graft. The men at the head of affairs would no sooner think of robbing their city than they would of stealing from their church or their club.

Just a glance at Edinburgh, the most beautiful city in Great Britain. Edinburgh owns its street railways, but instead of operating them has leased them for a term of twenty-one years to a company which pays a rental of 7 per cent on the capital outlay of $5,500,000. After paying interest, sinking fund and other expenses the city had a clear revenue of about $27,500. This does not compare favorably with the record of cities which operate their plants, and there is much dissatisfaction.

Edinburgh owns a fine system of baths. Its electric light plant paid last year a net profit of $300,000. In the construction of houses for the working classes Edinburgh has spent nearly $1,000,000, and, while maintaining low rent rates, there is a steady annual profit to the city. The technical and public schools of Edinburgh are famous. Like most Scotch cities, it owns its markets and slaughtering houses and has adopted modern methods for the disposal of sewage and street sweepings.

A VICKSBURG INCIDENT

Col. Charles H. Kibler apropos to the coming dedication of memorials at Vicksburg, recalls an incident of the siege which is interesting because of the light it throws on the character of General Grant. The latter's four-word endorsement reveal the bluntness and determination of the man. Judge Kibler wrote the report of the incident and has the original, endorsed as stated, in his possession. He says:

The night of the 3rd day of July, 1863, at Vicksburg (the terms of the surrender having been settled) was as quiet as the grave, until a little before 10 o'clock, when two cannon shots were fired from a confederate battery near the river, at the federal redoubt called "Fort Woods," situated near the river, a mile or so above the city. This was startling. Not knowing what it meant, Colonel Charles R. Woods, the brigade commander on the right of the Federal lines, sent to the division commander the following report:

"Headquarters 2nd Brigade, 1st Div. 1st A. C.

"Walnut Hills, Miss., July 3, 1863.

"Major: Since ten minutes before ten o'clock tonight, the enemy have fired twice at my redoubt in the flat near the river.

"I am respectfully yr. obt. servant,

"CHAS. H. WOODS,

"Major J. W. Paddock, Commanding Brigade, A. A. Genl. 1st Div., 1st A. C."

In the course of about an hour, this paper was returned with these endorsements (respectively in the handwriting of General Steele and General Grant) viz:

"Headquarters 1st Div., 1st A. C.

"July 2, 1863.

"Respectfully referred to headquarters of the Dept. of the Tenn.

"FRED K. STEELE,

"Major Genl. Comdg.

"Return every shot fired.

"U. S. GRANT,

"Maj. Genl. Comdg."

There were no further shots from the confederate battery and the incident closed.

The only conceivable explanation is, that the shots were fired by some subaltern who opposed the surrender and took that unusual, and under the circumstances inexcusable, method of indicating his protest against it, or that it was the irresponsible act of some gunner who intended to create a sensation.

For a Weak Digestion.

No medicine can replace food but Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will help you to digest your food. Fine West End Addition.

No where in Newark has the city grown more rapidly during the past two years than in the West End, where the population has nearly doubled. Property here is rapidly increasing in value, and nowhere else can be found more desirable property, or a more safe investment, than by putting your money in Park lots. The conditions here are perfect, and the indications are that portion of the city will be built up solid within a short time. W. C. Wells is offering very desirable lots at reasonable prices and easy terms. Before buying property see Mr. Wells on the ground. The city cars will take you within one block of his addition.

Warden Hotel Block

In the Maid of Honor's Carriage

[Copyright, 1921, by T. C. McClure.]

The young man entered the carriage, banged the door shut and settled himself comfortably with a sigh of relief. Opposite him sat a pensive young woman in a bewildering gown of fluffy white. The young man removed his high hat and mopped his perspiring brow. He adjusted his tie and brushed the dust from his coat sleeve. The carriage rattled briskly over the pavements. Outside the early afternoon sunshine flooded the streets with a mellow glow.

"Well," said the young man, straightening himself and smiling at the girl, "another good man gone wrong. Every time I assist at the weddings of these reckless youths I feel somehow like an executioner."

"We're getting to be arch conspirators in the wedding line, aren't we?" the girl laughed. "It seems of late that we are thrown together at every one."

"Let's see," he mused; "this is the third so far this month. We're accumulating a great weight of responsibility."

"All my friends seem to be going in for matrimony," she said.

"Mine, too," he returned cheerfully. "Eymen is an indiscriminate old burglar. He gobbles 'em right and left. And when a man's married he's as good as lost to his friends—at first," he added.

"But they all come back to the club and—the old life, don't they?" she said testily.

"Most of them," he admitted.

"That's the man of it," she said.

"Marriage is a lottery," he said, lacking momentarily a more original observation.

"Pleasant the snaffles of courtship, improving the manners and carriage," she quoted.

"But the colt who is wise will refrain from the terrible thorn bit of marriage," he finished.

"There seems to be a great many colts lacking wisdom," she remarked.

"And lots more willing to lack that commodity," he laughed.

"Doesn't a wedding ever impress you as rather pathetic?" she asked.

"Always," he replied. "Often heart-rending."

"Well, mine shan't be," she said. "It shall be very, very cheerful."

"That's the kind I should prefer for myself," he acquiesced.

"The service should be short," she said.

"Just long enough to be legal," he agreed cheerfully.

"And it would be a very quiet affair—just a few friends, the cheerful kind, not the weepy sort."

"Second the motion," said he.

She looked up quickly, then turned her eyes and watched the burrowing crowds on the sidewalks.

"At high noon and at the house," she mused. "The church is too big and gloomy and solemn. Surely at the house. And for decorations a few simple orchids."

"It's amazing how you voice my sentiments," said he.

The carriage swung around a corner and entered a more quiet street. The young man flicked an imaginary bit of dust from his coat.

"That would be a wedding," he said. "You'd have an orchestra behind some palms on the broad stairs, wouldn't you?"

"Yes; a string orchestra," she returned.

"Of course, of course—a string orchestra," said he.

"And a jolly informal wedding breakfast and punch," she went on.

"That's the idea!" he said approvingly.

"And every one who wept should be fined $5," she said.

"Make it $10," he suggested, "or thirty days in the house of correction. The crime would warrant it."

She laughed gaily.

"It wouldn't be a somber affair, I'll warrant you," she asserted.

"I'll bet it wouldn't," he said enthusiastically.

He mopped his brow nervously and looked covertly at the girl opposite him. Her eyes were still turned from him.

"I'd like to try a wedding of that sort," he said.

"There wouldn't be any ushers," she remarked pointedly.

"Certainly not," he said. "I fully realize that. I'd like to try it as—as bridegroom."

"Why don't you?" she asked faintly.

"Well, I would if I were sure of the girl," he said. "You see"—He paused.

"I'm afraid I don't see," she said laughing.

"You see, there's only one girl I want, and I don't dare ask her," he said plaintively.

"Indeed!" she said coldly.

"There's only one girl I want," he repeated desperately. "And she's the one who has heard me rail at weddings from time immemorial. I'm afraid she wouldn't believe I was serious."

The girl's face grew very red.

"You—you haven't railed at this imaginary one," she said without turning her eyes.

"In an instant he was on the seat beside her.

"Then she will marry me?" he asked softly.

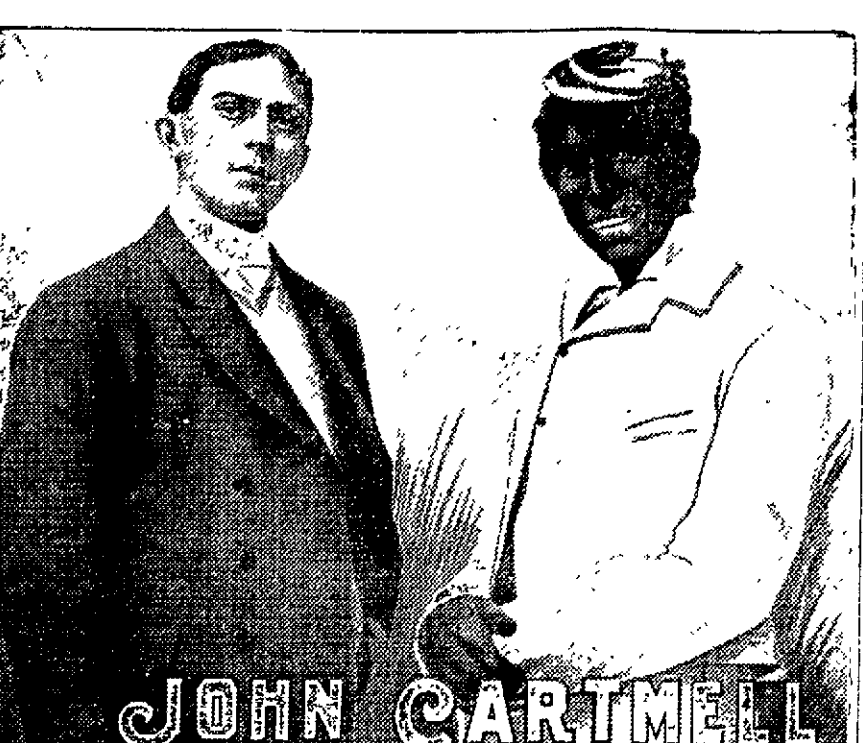

The girl pressed her hot face against the window of the carriage.

"You said you thought marriage was a—a lottery," she faltered.

"Well," he said stoutly, "who wouldn't risk a lottery chance if he knew he should draw the capital prize?"

Marie Tempest.

Her New Play, "The Freedom of Suzanne," a Decided Hit.

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

"The Freedom of Suzanne" is one of the most amusing plays of the season. It is to be regretted that Marie Tempest did not bring the play across from London earlier in the season, so that every one could have had a chance to see it. Miss Tempest's time at the Empire theatre, where she is now appearing in the play, is limited to four weeks, more's the pity.

"The Freedom of Suzanne" is a three act comedy of English society life. Interest continues unabated throughout the unweaving of the entire story, and the general average of the per capita consumption of laughter in New York is greatly increased during the performance.

Custard Gordon Lennox, author of "The Marriage of Kitty" and husband of Miss Tempest, wrote "The Freedom of Suzanne." Consequently he was in a particularly favorable position to fashion for her a role that fitted her to a nicety.

Suzanne (Miss Tempest) is a young married woman who finds her husband, Charles Trevor (well played by Allan Ayresworth), too prosaic to add comfort as she understands the word to her life. Besides, he is too masterful. He persists in attempts to have a word or two of authority here and then in his own house and one evening finally says "Charles, I can't stand you any longer. You always keep a close watch on me. [You pushed it, too, Suzanne.] You don't want me to make the acquaintance of men who are not your friends because you don't want me to associate with your new friends because you know too much about them. Now, what am I to do? I simply must part, you know."

That quotation gives a key to the character of Suzanne, who finally revolts openly and obtains a divorce. She and Trevor meet at a summer hotel a few weeks after the act and before the court's decree is made also late. Things at the hotel are the subject of the second act, in which Suzanne finally becomes convinced that she really loves Trevor. She knows he still loves her.

In the third act, at Trevor's flat in London, the couple become reunited, and all ends as happily as a day in June.

"Many people wonder how Press Eldridge got his peculiar name," said a well known theatrical manager recently. "Of course everybody knows that he inherits his surname from 'Aunt Louisa' Eldridge, bless her—but how he acquired that queer prefix, Press, is a mystery that has puzzled many people. Not that Press Eldridge requires any explanation personally. He has been 'monologuing' so long that every devotee of vaudeville knows him, and, by the way, I see he is still at it at Keith's theatre here, which reminds me of telling his pal name. He was christened Preston Brooks Eldridge after the celebrated senator from South Carolina, who afterward got a bad name by 'beating up' the venerable Sumner of Massachusetts, and after that the Eldridge family didn't care so much for the name of Preston and dropped the Brooks on their own. I observe that Mr. Tempest's 'Press' Press Eldridge 'goes on forever.' I was a neighbor of the family in my so days, and the Eldridge boy was such a town pest with his pranks and practical jokes, who even the vicar couldn't help laughing at, that we called him 'Press'—PRESS Eldridge. Naturally the boys all loved the name, but, since the couldn't call 'Press' and 'Eldridge' equally amusing, it finally summed down to Press Eldridge, and as such he has been known ever since."

GRACE'S CAPTURE

By JAMES HARRIGAN

Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McChesney

Clyde Phillips emptied his revolver at his pursuers and tore madly down the road. Presently he reined in his horse and turned to look into the twin barrels of a shotgun.

Farther along the road was a decided pretty face which bore a look of stern determination. Instantly her hands went up.

"That's better," said a girlish voice. "Now throw those guns into the road."

"What is this?" he asked laughingly. "a holdup?"

"You ought to know," she said tersely. "You started it. Drop those guns quick."

"Evidently you are a volunteer," he said easily. "You don't have to play the game like that. Those guns of mine are only loaded with blanks."

The girl laughed scornfully.

"But you dropped those poor men out of the saddle," she said meaningly. "You throw those guns down or I'll fill you full of buckshot."

With a laugh, he tossed the pistols into the road. The girl rode up and with the rope at her saddle bow bound his hands together, bringing the arms down. Then, dismounting, she utilized the rest of the rope to bind his feet together under the horse's body.

"Look here," said Phillips uneasily, "what is this?"

"It means the game's up," she answered. "I saw your description in the county papers two weeks ago. There's a reward of $10,000 up for you."

"Who do you mistake me for?" he asked anxiously. "There is no reward offered for me, and if you think to hold me for ransom you make a grievous error."

"There's no mistake," she said shortly. "I saw the report of your holdup six weeks ago. Then came the offer of reward and your description, and now I just saw you tumble three deputies into the road. I watched a chance to get in behind you. What did you stop so suddenly for?"

"I was going back," he explained. "I'm the head of a motion picture expedition. We are down here taking a series of pictures of the holdup of the paymaster's train by Butte Bill last week. I was playing the desperado, escaping from the posse sent to capture him. As soon as I was out of range I started to go back to the party and found you."

"WHAT IS THIS," HE ASKED. "A HOLDUP?"

"Quite a surprise, wasn't it?"

"It was," he admitted frankly. "but it's something that can be easily explained. If you will just lead me back to the party it will all turn out right."

With scorn playing about a decidedly pretty mouth, she remounted her own horse and, catching the bridle of his, turned the horses' heads down the road.

Phillips tried to argue, but to all entreaties she was deaf, and finally he kept silence and let her lead him along the dusty trail, cursing the fate that had led him beyond sight of his co-workers.

An hour passed before the trail led them from the foothills out upon the prairie, and every foot of the way was agony to Phillips, whose bonds cut with every motion of the horse.

"Would you mind loosening these ropes a little?" he asked finally. "You see, we city men are not as used to the saddle as you are out here."

The girl looked back coldly. "I guess you can stand it for awhile," she said shortly. "I'm not going to take chances with you. You're no city man."

"If you will feel in my coat pocket," he urged, "you will find papers that will prove my identity."

He spoke so earnestly that, half convinced, she let her horse drop back and slipped her hand first into the outside, then into the inside pockets. There was not a shred of paper.

"What are you up to?" she asked sharply. "Did you think you could reach my gun?"

"I had forgotten," he said shamefacedly. "I changed to a costume, and every scrap of paper is in my other clothes."

"It will be a long time before you see those," she retorted grimly, "unless you peach and tell where the gang holds out."

"The Star theater, Chicago, is where my gang holds out," he laughed. "If you ever come to Chicago I should be pleased ed to extend to you all the courtesies of the house—free tickets, you know."

"Better wait until you get there," she cautioned. "If the boys get at you before the sheriff does"—She left the sentence unfinished, but there was no need of explanation.

"Where are we headed for?" he asked after a silence, more to break the solitude than anything else.

"To the shack first, for dinner," she answered; "then from horses and by the long route to Thomas City."

"Why not the shorter way?" he pleaded.

"And maybe run into your gang? No, sir!" She retorted, with emphasis. "I've worked like a slave for my little home-stand. Sister and I have a quarter section each, and we live together where the two tracts join. We need some money to get irrigation, and I'm not going to take any risks of losing you."

After that Phillips was silent until they came in sight of a small shack, in the doorway of which stood a blue clad figure. This he found was the sister, and after he had dismounted (with a pistol inconspicuously near his ear) she it was who led the horses to the stable, while the other took him inside and tied his legs to a chair.

They would not untie his hands even while he ate, and painstakingly his captor, whom her sister called Grace, cut up his meat and fed him. As soon as the meal was over fresh horses were brought around, and they began their long trip to Thomas City.

The detour added four miles to the route, but Grace would hear of no change of plan, and soon they were making their way through another pass.

Toward dusk they were overtaken by a horseman, and with a shout of joy Phillips hailed the sheriff of Thomas county. In a few words the Chicagoan explained what had happened, and the sheriff turned, only to look into the barrels of the shotgun which Grace still carried.

"I've got two of you!" she cried. "Put up your hands!"

His hands shot up like a well trained plainsman's should when he is cornered, and presently there were two captives.

"I ain't one of his gang," pleaded the sheriff. "I'm the sheriff of this here county, an' I've just come from Aurora way, where they shot up Butte Bill day before yesterday."

"You tell that to the sheriff," she said. "You're most as good at inventing stories as he is," indicating Phillips.

At 10 o'clock that night the sheriff of Thomas county and the picture man were led up to the piazza of Red Larkin's hotel in Thomas City, to the keen delight of the loungers. Explanations and assurances followed quickly, and the girl who had arrested the sheriff and the Chicagoan promptly forgot her bravery and wept most feminine tears.

Phillips escorted her back to the ranch in the morning and incidentally to get his own horse back; but, though he rode his own animal back to town, he found it necessary to make several more trips, which resulted in his taking Grace with him when he went back to Chicago. The sheriff is to marry the sister in the spring and run the farm for her. His official position has lost its charm for him since he was held up by a woman.

Seventeenth Century Pedantry.

A crushing weight upon science and literature in the seventeenth century was the dominant pedantry. The great thing was to write commentaries upon old thought and diligently to suppress new thought. The only language of learned lectures was a debased Latin. During the seventeenth century pedantry became a disease in every country. In England a pedant sat on the throne, and Walter Scott has mirrored his spirit in the "Fortunes of Nigel." In Italy and Spain the same tendency prevailed. The world now looks back upon it sometimes with abhorrence, sometimes with ridicule, as pictured in both countries by Manzoni in the "Promessi Sposi." In the American colonies it injured all thinkers, and two of the greatest, the Mathers, it crippled. In France there was resistance. Montaigne had undermined it, and it was the constant theme of the brightest wit. Labruyere presented it in some of his most admirably drawn pictures. Moliere, who had occasion to know and hate it, held it up to lasting ridicule in the "Marriage Force."—Professor Andrew D. White in Atlantic.

John Knox as a Galley Slave.

John Knox, the famous Scotch preacher, was a galley slave on French vessels. "For nineteen months he had to endure this living death," says a writer, "which for long drawn out torture can only be compared with what the Christians of the earliest centuries had to suffer when they were condemned to the mines. He had to sit chained with four or six others to the rowing benches, which were set at right angles to the side of the ship, without change of posture by day and compelled to sleep, still chained, under the benches by night; exposed to the elements day and night alike; enduring the lash of the overseer, who paced up and down the gangway which ran between the two lines of benches; wearing the coarse canvas shirt and serge jacket of the rower; feeding on the insufficient meals of coarse biscuit and porridge of oil and beans; chained along with the vilest malefactors."

You with eyes of sunny blue,
You with lustrous, gleaming hair,
You with skin so smooth and fair,
For yourself what can you say,
Little, blithesome fairy, pray?

Little maiden, maiden dear,
There was in a long gone year
One who looked as you do now,
One with sunny eyes and brow,
One whose smile was more to me
Than aught else on land or sea,
One who held within her scope
All my life and heart and hope.

Nothing now is left me here
From that faroff, vanished year
Of my love of long ago,
But your cheek and brow of snow,
But your limpid, laughing eyes,
Where her loving likeness lies,
But your sweep of sunny hair
With its curling tendrils fair.

Little maiden, maiden dear,
There is this that you can do—
Smooth away the bitter pain
That is eating her in vain,
Smile on me with sunny eyes,
Smile until the sorrow dies,
Till my dead heart wakes again
To the world of living men.

CRITICISM OF THE RICH

Their Duty to Society as Viewed by Rockefeller's Pastor.

WHY HE DEPLORES CLASS HATRED

Dr. Charles A. Eaton of Cleveland, O., declares all men are equal before God and that possession of wealth is not a crime—DANGER SHOWN IN HEARTLESS SELFISHNESS OF MANY MONEYED FAMILIES—SAYS TOO MUCH IS MADE OF PLEASURE.

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church in Cleveland, O., at which John D. Rockefeller worships, recently accepted the invitation of the New York World to speak about the "rich of America." He said:

"America is the land of great fortunes, created for the most part by men of brains and character who have seized the unparalleled industrial opportunities of the past half century and who have, while making money for themselves, largely increased the total wealth and well being of the nation. 'Side by side with the growth of wealth poverty has lifted its grim front into dark and sobering contrast. Labor has instinctively and necessarily organized itself to counterbalance corporate capital. These two great forces are still at war, but eventually they will have to co-operate. Our cities have grown so fast and their racial diversity is so great that, although we have a true city civilization, we have no public morality or public opinion powerful enough to save us from the civil corruption which is at once our shame and menace. In the mad race for money, which has spread like a deadly disease among all classes, our political machinery has so often degenerated into the means of advancing private and class interests that faith in our institutions and the men who work them is on the wane. We have passed the constitutional or political stage of our history and are now so completely in the age of economics that literature, art, government and even religion have for the moment dropped to a secondary place. There is serious question if American civilization today has a moral and spiritual basis sufficient for its future."

"Amid such conditions as these what has the country the right to ask of its rich men and their children? It has a right to ask of them all that it demands of any morally responsible citizen—namely, that they shall fully discharge their obligations to society."

"Class preaching, like class legislation, is always vicious. Wholesale denunciation of the rich is as futile as any other form of slander. Moral obligation is binding upon men as men without regard to their social or economic condition. There are no class distinctions in moral law. Whatever is right is right for the same reason. At the bar of God wealth and poverty are meaningless terms. The gospel of Jesus is addressed to mankind. He is the universal man in life, message and example. He makes it hard for the rich man to enter into the kingdom of God, not because there is any special wickedness in being rich, but because riches bring enlarged responsibilities, while at the same time they tend to weaken the authority of spiritual sanctions. Messages addressed in the name of Christ to the rich are equally applicable to the poor."

"Rich people are like all other people—human. They have their own sorrows, temptations, struggles, failures, needs. There are among them men and women whose simplicity of life and unselfish public service cannot be questioned or improved upon. There are many rich families whose home life is as beautiful, simple and unostentatious as any to be found. There are many young men and women, children of great wealth, who daily and hourly give to the world an example of self sacrifice for others which is most reassuring. In the nature of the case it is no crime to be rich, any more than it is a crime to be poor."

"If the possession of wealth is a crime, then we are a nation of criminals. For practically every American man is doing his best to get rich. As a class the rich are probably misrepresented by the press more persistently than any other unless it be politicians. The public attitude toward them swings between shrieking slander and an adulation as disgusting as it is absurd. This, added to the envy evoked by success, the appalling contrasts between the life of the rich and that of the poor in our cities, the grotesque and heartless selfishness of many moneyed families and the increasing lawlessness of the American character among all classes, constitutes a situation as difficult as it is dangerous."

"It is a serious handicap to be born rich, for then the necessity for struggle is eliminated, and man, like nature, advances only by struggle. The child of wealth lives in an unreal world and is in danger of becoming degenerated mentally, morally and physically by luxury. As a rule, he grows up to misunderstand his age. This is largely the fault of his parents, who think more of vulgar display than of training the spirit of their offspring in noble living and working. All progress is primarily a matter of morals, and in a progressive society a boy must be better than his father to be as good as his father."

"No one can deny that many of our rich men and women prove by their splendid philanthropies and public services that they fully recognize their obligations and faithfully try to discharge them. But as a class the rich in America take a very painful impression upon the earnest minded people. Their contribution to the higher life of their time and country is meager and trivial to the last degree. They make too much of pleasure. The young men as a rule refrain from taking their place of leadership in politics. The affairs of their cities are left in the hands of underlings. Only occasionally does the rich young man in America sound a call to his fellows of noble service. The fashionable set weary themselves to create in the public mind the impression that they are of different clay, when they are simply brilliant parasites living on money accumulated by other men's brains and depending for safety on religion and morals inherited from their less wealthy neighbors. The sons of wealth ought to turn away from all vulgar display. Social functions costing vast sums of money within the sight of the black nightmare of city slums are worse than folly—they are a crime."

"Power without due sense of duty is as dangerous as dynamite in the hands of a lunatic. Money means power, and power of any kind involves solemn moral obligations. The man who is free from struggle on his own account ought to struggle for others. No more deadly danger can confront a people than increase of wealth coupled with relative decrease of moral quality. It is like taking from children their dolls and tops and giving them Gatling guns and torpedoes for playthings. Where the rich show earnestness and sobriety of character and a genuine sense of obligation to their fellows they become fountains of peace and progress. Where they squander their money with wild recklessness upon their whims and passions they kindle the flame of envy, distrust, fear and hate and disturb the stability of society, which depends upon the mental good will of all classes."

"It is time for the sons of wealth in America to be recalled to their real duty and their supreme opportunity. They have sufficient examples in their own ranks to show the way to this higher life. Let them lay aside their costly instruments of pleasure and hectic excitement and let them experience the exultant joy of service. Instead of sapping by their example the moral life of the land let them begin to make some real contribution to the spiritual resources of their time and country. Let them get their feet on the ground among folks, take up their political duties, strike hands with the men of brain and brawn who are doing things and so help to keep the soul in man from being crushed beneath the ashes of materialism. Till then, and not till then, shall be hushed that bodeful cry of social hate which, like the sobbing of the winds across a winter sea, startles with its note of danger."

"How is America to fulfill her high destiny if those who ought to be her princely leaders behave like groundlings? Mazzini cried to the young noblemen of Italy, 'Come and suffer!' and their response added a new and sublime chapter to the story of human progress. Hungary had her Kossuth, Germany her Bismarck, England her Gladstone and her Shaftesbury. We have had a Lincoln from among the peasants and a Roosevelt of gentle birth, but both by the sheer might of their noble manhood have won for themselves a place of imperishable love in the hearts of their countrymen. These and their like ought to be the models after which our American sons of wealth shall build their life."

INTERESTS OF AGRICULTURE

Purpose of International Congress to Meet in Rome, Italy.

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy has taken the initial step toward convening an international agricultural congress at Rome, Italy, says the Washington Star. The convention will be called for the specific purpose of establishing an international chamber of agriculture, the primary objects of which would be to collect and disseminate correct information relative to prices of agricultural products all over the world, the condition of crops harvested and under cultivation, the stock on hand and in transit, the creation of centers of agricultural activity, the federation of those now in existence, the establishment of a permanent exchange for agricultural products and the drafting of agricultural treaties.

According to the present tentative plans, the chamber is to be divided into two houses, an upper house, in which each nation shall have an equal representation, and a lower house, in which the representation shall be in proportion to the interests represented.

The United States will be represented at the conference by Ambassador White and by Dr. Albert F. Woods, chief pathologist and physiologist of the department of agriculture, who is also the United States delegate to the second international botanical congress, to be held in Vienna June 12 to 18. Dr. Woods has published a number of bulletins, monographs and reports, has contributed extensively to agricultural and scientific journals and is well known in the botanical world. In addition he is a member of the foremost national and international scientific societies.

Chicks Hatched by Electric Bulb.

H. M. Vance, a chicken fancier at Muskogee, I. T., was expecting great results from a sitting of eggs that promised well until two days before time for hatching, when the hen broke all the eggs except three and refused to sit on those that were left, says a Muskogee dispatch. Mr. Vance took the three remaining eggs before they became cold, made a nest in the house, placed an electric light bulb in the nest and turned on the current. In twenty hours he had hatched all three eggs and he has three as fine chickens as any old hen ever hatched. The warmth from the electric light was just strong enough.

The Coming of Grandma

By BERTHA BLAKE

Copyright, 1905, by T. C. McHenry

The man strode toward her with undisguised pleasure in his eyes.

"Helena, this is indeed an unexpected—"

"Surprise?" broke in the girl, mindful of the audacity her interruption lent to his remark.

"Pleasure," corrected Norton firmly. He did not fail to detect an undertone of sarcasm in Helena's tone.

She shrugged her shoulders. "Oh," she said simply, but that one word conveyed depths of incredulity.

"Going away?" asked Norton, looking about for some traveling impedimenta. And yet if Helena had been going away surely he would have known it.

The girl flung him a scornful glance. "No," she said, tapping her foot nervously on the tiled floor of the station.

"And you?" looking pointedly at the bunch of violets he carried.

"I've come to meet a train."

Helena glanced at the big clock on the wall. "It's six minutes yet," she informed him knowingly. Since his arrival her chin had been elevated perceptibly.

Norton's glance followed hers to the clock. "Love, it's in now—my train!" he said, and with a hasty adieu, he rushed off through the great doors, leaving her staring after him dazed.

Again her eyes sought the clock. No, she was not mistaken. Florence had wired that she would arrive at 3:10, and it was now only 3:04. "Never mind meeting me," she had added in her telegram, but Helena had only laughed away her friend's instructions. Florence had always been overthoughtful.

Now she sat down on the depot bench. Norton must have been misinformed as to the time of arrival—why, of course, Florence had sent him word too. It seemed quite unnecessary to Helena and yet—she suddenly recalled that he had stopped off at Poughkeepsie once or twice. She saw it all now. Norton had only been coming to see her, taking her out, keeping in touch with her, on account of Florence. He wished to be welcome at the Bradford home when the girl visited there. "Never mind meeting me"—the words in Florence's message rang in Helena's mind. Why were they so secretive about it all?

The girl brushed her hand over her eyes. Was she dreaming or—oh, she longed to be at home where she could bury her head in her pillows and—

She started. Coming toward her, attentively guiding an elderly woman, was Norton. He held her arm and looked down into her wrinkled face with a tenderness Helena had never before seen in his eyes. Then—he did not come to meet Florence? This was perhaps his grandmother. She was too old for his mother.

Norton raised his hat and smiled as he passed her, but Helena stared at him stupidly, barely nodding her head. A daff, duff, duff, to his very hair, but as he followed her into the carriage Helena saw him hand the old lady the violets. The girl's brain cleared.

How she had misjudged him! Her heart beat wildly, and she longed now to rush after him and apologize for the way in which she had greeted him. But, even when she saw him, how could she explain her behavior?

In her excitement and in the rush of conflicting emotions which surged through her Helena almost forgot the train she was to meet. But, girl like, her guest was looking everywhere for some one from the Bradford family, in spite of her suggestion that none of them should be there.

"I know you'd come," she said after an effusive greeting.

"Of course, goosie," retorted Helena, hugging her friend's arm enthusiastically. "Not meet you when I haven't seen you for months?"

But all afternoon, above the chat and gossip incident to her guest's arrival, Helena's mind reverted to her conduct at the station. Would Norton ever come to see her again? And if he did not, could she afford to write him a note of apology?

That evening whenever the bell rang her heart did somersaults with undue energy. And when Norton was announced she could scarcely keep her joy within bounds. Never before today had she realized what a large part he played in her life; how much she had learned to believe him hers in spite of the indifferent manner in which she always treated him.

Florence was not ready to go downstairs, and her hostess, glad of the opportunity to see Norton for a minute alone, preceded her.

"Helena," began the man, holding out his hand just as he did that morning in the depot, "I had to come to-night." He searched her eyes, half looking for the scorn which he saw in them in the station. He was visibly relieved, if puzzled, when he discovered her old sauciness playing in them again.

"Why?" she asked hypocritically.

"It is for me to ask why—after this morning," he said softly and stepping closer to her.

"Florence arrived this morning," Helena began irrelevantly.

The man frowned—not at the news she had imparted, but at her persistency in changing the subject.

"And my grandmother, too, arrived," he said.

Helena nodded. "Yes, I saw you."

"I wouldn't have known it from your glance."

"Perhaps you are imaginative or—over-sensitive," the girl persisted, trying to make the outcome easier for herself. She felt—oh, so wickedly deceitful; she almost hated herself. Both cheeks burned, and she avoided his direct gaze.

"Look here, Helena," said Norton, laying one hand on her shoulder. "Why were you so—so different this morning? Was it because my dear old grandmother is so—so different from the woman we meet here?" Helena raised a protesting hand, but he hurried on.

"My father, as you know, was a self-made man—and his mother—but don't think I am ashamed of her."

Helena's lips quivered and her eyes burned. "Oh, believe me, it wasn't your grandmother. I think she's lovely. I—I thought you had come to meet—Florence," she cried, throwing up her head and looking him squarely in the eyes at last.

"Helena," the man said, and his breath came quickly. "And you cared?" The girl nodded her head slowly.

A few moments later she raised her eyes shyly to his.

"Don't you think we might have a matron of honor instead of a maid?"

"She shall be my best man if you say so."

"Not at all, sir, so long as I do not come in contact with it."

Undoubtedly.

"Why did she accept him?"

"Because he proposed."
